I went to a Karla Bonoff concert on 11/10 in Madison Wisconsin. Karla wrote the song that is one of my MOST fav ever -Lose Again. They were both in LA during some of same years, so I thought there was a possibility she knew Dusty.

Karla stayed around to sign CDs and talk with anyone interested so I had her sign a CD and I had a chance to talk to her and tell her that I got turned on to her as an artist through Dusty singing her song. karla said to me:

'I have a copy of Dusty's recording of that song and I really enjoy it. I am so sorry I never got to meet her."
How disappointing! However, it does not tarnish the absolute beauty of that song... Ro how was the concert? It is cool you got to ask her about Dusty!

I was a big fan of KB's back in the 1970s.

I got turned on to 'Lose Again' by Linda Rondstadt back in the '70's.

How cool, Ro! I absolutely adore Miss Dusty's version, especially in stereo. Though it is divine, I wonder how a studio version may have sounded.

thanks for finding this out Ro, I wondered if they ever met too. Did Karla perform Lose Again at the concert?

Hi everyone! The concert was very good, acoustics fantastic, venue very intimate. In addition, Karla had Kenny Edwards (who along with Karla and 2 other people are in the group Brindle) and Nina Gerber with her. Both Kenny and Nina are legends in their own right. However, Karla did NOT sing Lose Again much to my chagrin. She played some of her newer music and most of it was good. She talked allot between songs and to intro songs. During this talk, she focused on how all the men in her life had treated her badly, cheated on her, dumped her etc. She came across bitter and hard and cynical. May account for depth of emotion in many of her songs. Again, my biggest disappointment was she had never met Dusty. That's what I get for 'figuring'.
