Xmas is that time of year when we especially remember the loved ones who have left us.

I'm sure we will all spare a thought or two for Dusty along the way - whether we met her, knew her personally or just have come to know her through her special gift to us, her musical legacy.

Let me give you a nice image if you feel sad when you think about her.

A real good reason to believe in the afterlife.....Imagine Dusty in concert somewhere 'up there'....looking and singing her absolute best - jamming with other departed musicians...Jimi Hendrix, half the Beatles, a Supreme, Peggy Lee.... Wow! Don't you think that must truly be heaven. Think of the aftershow parties with her Mum & Dad! And maybe she's still making records.. Sigh... OK - maybe that's one step too far....

But - it's a nice dream....

Dusty will never truly be gone while we think about her and feel her feelings through her wonderful music. She is always in my life and has changed it in many ways for the better, not in the least for getting to know you people who feel the same way I do about her.

Happy Xmas to y'all

Tim x

Thanks for these beautiful thoughts, Tim; you're getting the old Moo to feel sentimental. Love Dusty and love you people for loving her the way you do; it brings out the best in us.

Merry Christmas.

You're right Tim, it comforts me to think there maybe some sort of 'afterlife', I'd like to think of Dusty up there jammin' with Luther, Otis, and many, many others.....
All the best
