Dusty is picking up speed. We've already had quite a few posts which prove that. I thought we might collect new Dusty articles here so we can see what the year brings as it moves on. I'll try to archive some of the other posts here in due course.

Here's an excellent article by Bob Stanley (journalist and member of the pop group St. Etienne) from The Times published on 3 April.

http://entertainment.timesonline.co.uk/tol/arts\_and\_entertainment/music/article6023649.ece

Towards it's end, I was glad to note that Duffy finally pays Dusty some dues. Seems like she's listened to 'Dusty in Memphis' at last. And Nick Raymonde (Ivor Raymonde's son) at the end talking about Dusty and David Bowie in the same breath - like I do sometimes. And I like Bob's reference to a few great Dusty tracks especially 'This Girl's In Love With You'. The first few times I heard this track I was knocked out. Nowadays I'm just astonished (and I still have to sit down to listen to it).

I believe there is going to be an article in the Sunday Express on the 12th to mark what would have been Dusty's 70th.

Hello Carole. Oops! I beg your pardon. No I didn't look. I thought it was about the Legend box-set!

This thread is just here to archive all the articles whether they have separate threads or not so we can find them all in one place.

That might be my fault Memphis for naming the thread The Legend of DS rather than what it should have been, The Legacy...

No, it's my fault for not looking at every thread you post. I mean for goodness sake! I know by now you never post trivia.

There's a good article on Dusty in today's issue of one of our local papers, 'Ham and High' Hampstead and Highgate Express.

Sorry I do not have a scanner but will try and photocopy article for you Will.

Just archiving this here - one of my best newspaper surprises this year from the Guardian on 15 March. 1000 Favourite songs you must hear. Dusty was featured in the Heartbreak installment with I Just Don't Know What To Do With Myself and You Don't Have To Say You Love Me. She wasn't featured in the Love, Sex, Party, People and Places or Protest and Politics editions. She should have been in a few of these I think. But anyway it was a great photo spread - I was really chuffed.

Just a bump.

Have there been any more excellent quality articles about Dusty that I could add here?

I haven't seen many others apart from a review of DIM in Mojo by Lucy O'Brien but it's not on line anywhere yet.

Here's Lucy O'Brien's Mojo article on Dusty In Memphis. It's not as good as I thought it was first time around but it was still great to flick through this magazine and find Dusty in it. It's a nice article too.

The album sits at No. 15 in this particular Top 40 list of the albums of 1969. The magazine itself is crammed with stories and pictures of slim hipped white male rockers. The main women that are featured are famous groupies. That's how it was back then. So it's nice that Dusty gets a page to herself.

The article - hope you can read it:

The full spread:

Memphis

Ever since we met...

PS Lucy mentions Petula and Lulu. Both followed Dusty to Atlantic Records to get that sound. Their efforts are, of course, very different. Just in terms of production values they are incomparable (IMO).

Thank you very much for this Memphis. You did very well without a scanner! I've saved it to my now bursting-at-the-seams Dusty articles folder.

It's a great article. 'Vulnerability, passion and quiet strength.' Oh yes.

Thanks, Memphis. My dad subscribes to Mojo so I'll get him to save me his copy.

Shame they got Don't You Forget About Me wrong, "But hey!" at least she got the full page to herself 😊

Thanks, Clive.

"But the icy Aussie with an immobile expression as our fair Dusty?" - I quite agree. His Emily Blunt suggestion might have potential though... In fact, that's one of the best suggestions I've come across.

Thanks to Vicky we have another article which I'm posting here too - with the same great photo that was used in the Guardian spread.

From The Daily Telegraph:

<http://www.telegraph.co.uk/sponsored/thefriday/6155413/How-to-relax-like...-Dusty-Springfield---The-Friday.html>

And I've just found a review of the Once Upon Time DVD from the same newspaper:

This afternoon, I had the tv on in the background as I was doing some work. All of a sudden I thought I heard someone say "Dusty Springfield" I turned around and there was an ad on for a compilation of romance songs, The Look of Love, is included and they played it and showed that pretty pic of Dust turning around with the flower in her hair. I was happy and shocked, seeing as Dusty gets like NO tv or radio coverage over here! :D
