It's just one of those moments. I can't put it into words. It's Dusty.

This is so beautiful - Dusty sang her heart and soul out for Burt. It's pretty obvious they had a soft spot for each other. As Dusty said she was very proud of it, hated the hair loved the song.

I like Dusty's hair long. I know it was either a wig or a "fall" as we used to call it.....anyway, I think the long hair makes her look younger. I like all her styles but the long hair is my fave. Maybe it added to Dusty's sense of vulnerability in the video. Just a thought.

Me too, Di. Actually, my favorite look is the 1978 - 1981. Probably because I had pretty much the same hairstyle. But I agree, the longer hair makes her look younger.

I could listen to Dusty sing A House is not a Home over, and over again. I wish she would have recorded it. I also could have done without Burt's intro before Dusty sang, but that's just me. 🙄

How I came back to Dusty after all these years, watched the BB special on PBS and saw Dusty sing A House is Not a Home - blew me away! I am speechless. Has to be one of the best performances ever on this planet! I also love Come Back to Me, part of her BBC series - I believe she arranged the orchestra, produced it, did it all. And what an effort! I really like the orchestration on it and, of course, Dusty's outstanding performance. That is true showbiz and she just nailed it. I could go on and on, but I think you'll know what I mean. 🌟 🌟

Do you think we'll ever see something as professional, moving and entertaining as Dusty's live performances again? I like modern music, but nothing really jumps out to me like she does.

I don't think we will ever see anyone that could even come close to Dusty, be it live or not. I know they are saying Adel is pretty good, but no Dusty. I know Zoey you are really young, and I find it amazing that you like Dusty, let alone even know who she is (was). Fantastic! 🤪

I like a great variation of music from the 50's onward. My friends think I'm a musical encyclopedia, but I'm clearly nothing compared to Brian and John etc, on here!!

People compare Dusty with Adele, and although Adele is talented- she is not the "new" Dusty. I don't think they are very similar at all.
