Did you ever know that you're my hero?

Everyday I find, you're in my heart and on my mind.....

Can I buy you a drink? 😊

Will - good ice-breaker! 😊

Nanceh and Ro - I guess with only one question, you can't afford subtlety... but Dusty might think you'd consider her a big butch lady!!

🎱 Oh, just PS'ing: There's no such thing as alc problems in heaven!

If Dusty was butch in any way shape or form, I have never seen or heard ANY (even teenie tiny) evidence of it. However, what goes on behind closed doors might redefine how one regards another...

Nancy, as fair warning, I am a third degree black belt in TKD and spar regularly! Advancing in the line to get to Dusty would certainly inspire me to use all my skills (and then some). Ha Ha!

Maybe some us need a less public thread called Steamin Dreamin!

BTW, Lauerence Cole says in his book on Dusty that this performance is the only one where Dusty performed as a "femme lesbian" and purposefully made it obvious. This was done in Australia so little risk it would be seen in other parts of world (back then).

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Tvwy15\_rpNg

He says "She sang 'Twenty Four Hours from Tulsa' in a long blond wig which fell over her eyes, and wore a high-collared white blouse and dark trousers. Surrounded by butch female dancers dressed as cowgirls in Stetson hats, she displayed the stereotypical butch-femme scenario to those aware of its existence:but for those who were not, she was simply a sexy broad in a hick bar somewhere in route to Tulasa, Oklahoma." Lauerence Cole "Dusty Springfield in the Middle of Nowhere".

I get the camp message, regardless, SHE IS NOT BUTCH!!!! (although there are many georgous butch women) She is simply BEAUTIFUL and sultry....

No, Dusty was not butch by any stretch of the imagination. Cor was just teasin, I reckon.
But Dusty was pretty bossy, I think.

Cor, I took your comment as a tease and got a kick out of it. If I offended you with my response, you have my sincerest apology.

What it did bring to mind was Dusty's own quote regarding her fear of being perceived that way. Additionally, I was reading the July DSB and on pg 25 there is a pic of Dusty with her hand on her hip leaning against a wall. The caption is so derogatory I almost ripped the pic out of the bulletin. In another article of the time, that same picture was used and that commentary called her 'butch looking'. Was really addressing it in broader sense.

PS- I think we should change this to top 10 questions or top 100 questions! Ha Ha! Ro

I totally agree, Ro. I was just citing LaDust herself who in some paper said that she'd hate to be thought of as a big butch lady. 😊 She was very femme, that's why the straight-acting worked so well...

Cor, thanks for responding! I assure you my base assumption is that all of us on this forum love Dusty and share that love of her in a way that draws us toward commonality and caring about each other even with our differences. I would never in a million years purposefully try to be disrespectful with anyones thoughts or opinions regardless of my agreement with them or not. It is SO COOL to be able to openly discuss this stuff though. Thanks again for that opportunity. Ro

She was asked too many questions. I couldn't ask anything of her. I think I'd just smile and look in her eyes and hope she realised that meant I love her for so many things especially her music. I think that would almost be too invasive but I wouldn't be able to help myself.

I finally thought of a question!!!

First I'd probably almost knock her over with a massive enormous hug, then my question would be...

"Why did you not fancy taking the Cats role?"

TA-DA!! 🎉

I know, that's a fairly lame question that took me an entire week to come up with! 😬🎉 But that's what I'd want to know! I've been trying hard to think of something deep and meaningful, but when one is already not very deep and not terribly meaningful it's difficult to come up with something along those lines!

Then I'd push my luck and ask if she fancied going to McDonalds with me for a good ol' chinwag over a Big Mac!

My questions at that point would then probably include:

- "Do you like handbags?"
- "Aren't cats lovely?!"
- "What's your favourite type of shopping?"

...Told you I'm not very deep! 🎉

Maybe if we were getting on really well I'd try and find out what really happened with Stringfellow. But only if we were getting on really well- I'd hate to have a half eaten Big Mac in my face! 😬
