I thought her rendition was great!!....I know it's been said that Patti's singing may be 'over the top', but to me that OTTness is just that something 'extra' she gives to a lyric!

I think she was bound to do it her own way, she did, and thats the way it came out. Not necessarily bad, just different to the way we know and love it.

I'm a fan of some of Patti's music, but I did not care for this cover AT ALL.

I don't even know any of Patti's music and i won't be listening to it anytime soon after that shrilling version of one of the best Dusty songs ever!

Patti's a pretty good singer, Clare. YDHTSYLM is just not her genre, really....

I loved it Sophie!.....hope she records it officially!, I've always loved Patti's singing right from 'Lady Marmalade' days, then there was 'Stir it up' from the Movie Beverly Hills Cop, and loads more, 'If you asked me to' is played over and over.

I bought Patti's latest CD last year when I was in Detroit (I know Patti's not a Detroit artiste, but it gave me a good feeling!) on which she duets with Elton John (who's a Fan), plus her version of The Pretenders 'I'll stand by you'.

Patti has her own site at www.pattilabelle.com , she's a professional Cook too!

I hated it! The song just isn't meant to be sung like that. I listened on the night and then once more and that was enough for me. I'm not saying I don't like other Patti stuff, just not this.

It seems by all accounts that she did it as you might expect Patti to do it - for me though it was a diabolical rendition. At the end I was convinced a cat had got caught in the strings of the violins!! Mind you, you couldn't fault her for effort. God bless Patti, 'You Don't Have To Say You Love Her..... Rendition'. 😊

This might be the 'Marmite' effect. I didn't think her version worked personally, but I might have been just as disappointed had she not applied her typically-idiosyncratic style.

I remember 20-odd years ago she did a version of 'Over The Rainbow' on some 'Sunday Night At The London Palladium'-type programme and although I loved it - and stayed in my head for several weeks later - a lot of my friends (some big Judy Garland fans) hated it.

I also really didn't like Patti's - I thought it was too over the top! Very shrilly. I've never heard any of her other songs so I can't comment on them.

Okie coccie, well I saw this lil clip at Nancy's earlier and it was hysterical how they cut out the part where she stacked it up the stairs and it was a sudden jump to her being on stage. Shame about Dermot being a pig about Joss Stone mind ya. Anyways, I didn't really dig her version of YDHTSYLM, but I did think Joss Stone's version of Son of a Preacher man was awesome and she hit all the right notes. Well done that girl!

I didn't bother watching it - I'm not a fan of Patti LaBelle, and I'm not a fan of people covering other's signature songs, unless they do something radically different.

I agree it wasn't the best performance of the song ever but her ending was quite something don't you think??

It most certainly was Andrew!.....as I've mentioned before Patti always gives that 'something extra' to the lyrics she sings, when a word is in her voicebox she'll twirl it around and belt it out in her own unique way.....I love her!!

i second that, Mark! Patti makes each song her own, and that's surely better than trying to imitate Dusty - because as we all know, nobody could come close. i really enjoyed Patti's version of YDHTSYLM, although it does seem i'm in the minority, here 😊

I may be wrong but didn't Patti record the original of 'Any Other Fool' with was recorded later by Dusty on the Reputation and Rarities CD or was it Patti Austin.

Absolutely Ro!.....according to her website she's recently recorded a Gospel CD, and she's doin' a Gospel tinged tour (though it has crossed my mind wether she'll perform 'Voulez-vous....'), I can't quite see some members of her audience on this Gospel tour being too enamoured with that one!!

LOL!.....I see where you're coming from Jane, but her 'pitch' is just one part of her attraction!!

I love Patti so much I wish I was her partner!.....she's said she loves cookin' as much as singin',.....OMG!, I'd be in seventh Heaven!

Having watched this again recently, it still sounds bad to me. I think Patti should have practiced more or chosen another song. Or I wish they'd have had Madeline Bell sing it, but I guess they were going for a "big name."
