Tom Lovett

Little by little

Posted - 02/02/2008 : 14:03:18

I was sitting at home last night flicking through the free TV channels when the telephone rang, I got quite a shock when the caller said, "Hi it's Simon Bell can I talk to Tom Lovett". To cut a long story short, Simon had three tickets for the the show this evening, and he wondered If i would like a ticket. Off course I said yes.

How did Simon get my phone number, it was pure luck that I had applied for my Dusty Day tickets this week and Simon still had my note with the phone number. Also I live in North London just a tube ride from the BBC Studios.

So I am off in a few hours to the Studio, to look for a man called Freddie who has a bald head and will be carrying a clip board, he will let me in!!! The tickets have become available because some of Katy's family can't make it.

So if you're are watching the show and see an elderly man with a grey beard and glasses with a huge grin on his face, it's me.

Tom 😊😁😁😁😁😁

Good Luck to Katy again tonight. I won't put the numbers on tonight as there is no point. It starts at 6.30 tonight earlier than last week.

Neil - I've got my usual crate of beer to celebrate, and a packet of Bombay Mix that I can nibble to stop me biting my fingers down to my elbows. So you won't be alone.

Wendy, you might put the info up just in case. I know I was trying to get someone to vote, and texted them last time, but won't be able to this time as I won't be here....so maybe they'll look here on the thread.

I got 42 pounds 70p, i had an idea it would be about 40 quid cos about six months ago in a moment of absolute boredom i counted it and then it was up to 35 quid.

I think as its SOAPM katy should sail through because the song is so well known. What i am secretly hoping for is that by the time next week arrives, people will be so enamoured of katy that they will vote for her whatever she sings. I also think i will be in therapy by the end of it all.

I agree Neil - I'm going to canvas all my friends and family next week. Or maybe I could get some leaflets run off and post them round the neighbours. I've never asked anything of them before.

Or did you mean a support group for you and I Neil. I might have to book into the Betty Ford clinic by the time this ends.

Cher was much better then Elton, but that's my opinion. I'm not chauvinistic but the Dutch Cher is even as good as the British Cher and that is very remarkable to the fact that The Netherlands is very much smaller compare to Great Britain.

What do you think about the Dutch Tom Jones?

Katy to the next round? Ofcourse. She has an excellent voice and the show proves that Dusty is stil an icon in Britain.

then, I have been VERY careful not to see or hear anything that might let me know the result. I even avoided listening to a voicemail one of my consultants left because she loves Katy as Dusty and the only reason I could think for her to phone so late on a Saturday evening was the show.

Anyway, Katy is through and she gave a fantastic performance of Son Of A Preacher Man. And in her case, being good was very easy and as though she didn't even have to try... Well done Katy - I'm thrilled!!!

Oh and Carole - you looked stunning tonight and I loved the bright pink DUSTY! placards :)

I arrived at the TV Studio just after 4.00pm and got in the queue and found myself standing behind Katy's husband Andy,her Mum and Dad and friends. We chatted awhile, I didn't know Katy had done a Cher tribute act and appeared in a show 'That'll Be The Day'.

We were booked in the TV centre at about 4.45pm, and were given a sticker (I was Red 101) and went into the large reception area. The place was simply buzzing, people in various T Shirts waving banners. There was even a guy in a shiny bright purple suit and Tom Jones wig !!! . Andy and other close family members were called for and went to Studio 1 at about 5.00pm. Next to be called to the Studio were the 'Voters' and at 5.45pm the Red Stickers were ushered to the Studio. I was seated in the second row to the right hand side and had an excellent view except for a large TV camera on a boom? which swung over our heads, I also got a good view of 'The Superfans' the Joan Collins 'Look A Like' had me in stiches in the refined way she applauded, very ladylike !?!

The actual TV show was a WOW, the sound was brilliant, and as you know we had to wait quite a while for Katy. Everything was perfect, the wig, the silk blouse with those sleeves and waistcoat and black velvet trousers. Katy did SOAPM justice, she has a very strong voice and at times I thought it could be Annie Lennox dressed up as Dusty, and that is a compliment. Once the TV show had finished they recorded the Temptations Tribute Act,for the results section later that evening. We were then allowed a 30 minutes break in the reception area,free bottles of water and bags of crisps being provided.(Well the BBC have a very tight budget).

Then came the voting, the tension was unbelievable especially as Katy was the last to get through to the semi final. Kiley really was a bit off to put in politely and poor old Reg had to go. Don't know why Cher was in the sing off, it should have been Frank or Tom in my opinion. Too soon, well nearly six hours later, I was on my way home. What an afternoon and evening.

I didn't get to talk to the Superfans but Carole did wave to me as she passed by on her way to the bar, the superfans went one way we went the other!! We'll have that chat one day Carole.

Whilst we were waiting to be readmitted to the Studio after the break, Dale Winton drove into the car park in his Benley to a great cheer, must have been collecting his pay cheque for the lottery show! Also Graham Norton appeared with his two dogs, explaining to the queue (as he so politely put it) that the dogs needed a sh-t and disappeared round a corner. I hope he wasn't going to the Blue Peter Garden.

All through the show Katy maintained the persona of Dusty, the way she stood and looked, even the hand movements. Can't wait 'til next week and IJDKWTDWM.

Thanks again to Simon Bell for the ticket.

Tom.

Glad you enjoyed the Show Tom!.....missed Katie's main performance but hopefully it'll be on youtube soon, managed to get our votes in and watched the second show, when Graham was announcing the Winner's it was a bit 'touch and go'! 🤔🤔

Popped into my local Woolies today and saw 'Hits collection' at no.22 in the Woolies chart, I guess this must be due to people taking an interest in Dusty after watching Katie, which is all for the good! 🍀

Oh fantabulous!!!! I can't wait for that.I thought she was tremendous last night but I did agree with David the judge - her best preformance was the one last week; that song just had so much emotion. But I also agreed with Carrie - this weeks' song was not weaker, it just had a different emotion.

I also really enjoyed the clip of Katy going to see Simon, which I presume is what she had referred to in her email. And I thought the comments (and the thumbs up) from the Superfans were excellent and I was delighted with them.

I could understand that the emotion would be different from last week due to the songs sung. I am ecstatic that she will be singing IJDKWTDWM next week...after hearing last weeks YDHTSYLM.. she will do it justice, I'm sure. I agree Will that Katy's best performance was last week, I don't think it was just the song either, Katy to me sounded like Katy this week and not Dusty, the movements weren't there either somehow. She did very well to get through, and yes she has a great voice. I thought I was the only one to

I also posted this on Dustyville...

The more I see Katy Setterfield, the more I like her. IMHO, I do think that Dusty was a much prettier woman than Katy. However, Kathy's phrasing is spot on, her voice is very close, although a bit deeper. Her hand movements are a bit OTT, especially in SOAPM. I think she needs to ease up a bit in those hand movements, although they are very accurate, just a bit too much. She needs to underplay that a bit in her performances. I feel her best performance so far was YDHTSYLM. I also agree with the judge that said she raised the standards so high that SOAPM was not her best performance. I have heard that she was working with a coach, but had no idea it was Simon Bell till recently. Excellent news!

Over all, she is so spot on that watching her brings tears to my eyes, almost as if Dusty was reincarnated. I know only another true Dusty fan would understand that last comment.

Here is a u-tube link of Katy singing SOAPM:

I think it will need to be cut and pasted to work.

I thought I posted earlier, but it's not here, so who knows! Anyway, I did watch the youtube clip and kinda agree with Cas. Some things were not quite right. The hair was perfect. The outfit close...although why didn't she go with the belt Dusty wore...the gold chain thing...? I think she was good but not great this week, but of course last week was a hard act to follow, and I haven't seen the other acts. I don't need too....I want "Dusty" to win!

I completely agree with all who are saying she will do better with a high octane song next week. And Tom and others who have observed there is some resemblance to Annie Lennox's singing.

Am I to understand that she almost didn't make the cut this week????????????????????????????????

That is not my understanding at all Nancy. Tom Coen from Dustyville (you might know him as he is from Boston) posted the odds and Katy now has a strong lead. Unfortunately I cannot find the link right now.

Well no. She was the last act to be announced through to next weeks' show, but - as they point out all the time - they are called "in no particular order at all". I think those of us who watched the show were on the edge of our seats (I certainly was) because she was the last name called... and since 'Cher' was also awaiting to be called, the fear at that moment was that 'Dusty' had gone into the bottom two, which she hadn't. Of course, as soon as her name was called, I literally jumped up off the sofa, lol..

I'm sure we weren't the only two, lovely Cas. I do think it was a fair comment.

Thanks for the link Marty. Worked fine by just clicking on it. Agree that last week was a little better, but think it was the song. Thought Katy's phrasing was wonderful. But, did all that arm waving get to anyone else? Got to a point that I almost missed the singing. Hope she tones it down a bit. Did like the dancing as was so very Dusty. All in all, another great performance.

I thought the arm waving was a bit over top Mauri as well, but overall I was very pleased with her performance.

You are welcome Paula. Afraid I wasn't extremely impressed with her dancing either. Both Katy and her father said that YDHTSYLM is Katy's best song that followed her all her life. IMO, it is a very difficult song to sing, especially in Dusty's style. Many singers seem to have turned it into a country music sound, which just does not cut it with me.

I do hope that Simon gets Katy to tone down her hand movements a bit. I also agree with you Paula that the hand movements in her SOAPM performance were so distracting that you almost missed the singing in parts. I hope Simon can coach her to tone them down a bit. Does anyone know what she will sing next week?

Does anyone have any Utube clips of her competition? It would be interesting to see.
