Hello fellow dusty fans.

Thought you all might be interested in an Article i found in Our Local Paper, i live on Hilton Head Island. Which is situated southernmost South Carolina, USA. the Paper is Called " The island Packet " And the Article was found in The Magazine section of the paper. it reads as follows:

This question was asked by, Tom Schaefer from Madison, Wisconsin. USA ( Maybe Tom is a member.??? )

What's the status of the Biopic of 1960s British Pop star Dusty Springfield, starring Charlize Theron.??

Answer.

Dusty Springfield, who died of breast Cancer in 1999 aged 59 after a troubled life- is the subject of two biopics, but Theron is not involved. Nicole Kidman will produce and star in one, and Michael Cunningham ( The Hours ) is writing the script. before that, Kidman has another singing role-in Nine, set to start filming in October. meanwhile, Kristin Chenoweth is also developing a Springfield biopic for herself that may be out first....

Thanks for that, Geordie - it's astonishing where Dusty pops up, and how often!

I still get shivers at the thought of Nicole Kidman playing Dusty and they're not good shivers! I hope it just fades away as all the others seem to have done. I've not got a problem with Michael Cunningham, just the 40 odd year old beanpole that is Nicole Kidman playing (say) the 24 year old diminutive Dusty.

I have been comparing thoughts of Nicole Kidman playing Dusty with Myrel Streep in Mamma Mia. Hopefully it will be good, just not the real thing. Trying to stay optimistic.

I posted on the Nicole Kidman thread just yesterday or this morning.

'The Nicole Kidman movie has moved to script stage and will be produced by Nicole's own production company. It's set to be made or released in 2009. Looks like it's for real.' It looks like it will focus on Dusty against the backdrop of the rise of rock groups like the Stones and Beatles.

The Kristin Chenowith movie looks like a small independent movie and is currently scheduled for a later release.

If Nicole's movie is going to show anything of the complexity of Dusty as a person, say while making 'Memphis', Nicole's the one to do it well. She's a brave and excellent actress (in my book anyway). It was Jane Campion's 'Portrait of Lady' that confirmed that for me. I don't know how she'll act her way to be several inches shorter though.

as i posted on another thread, dusty was never 9 foot three inches, so kidman should be out. Its ridiculous, yes she can be a sensitive ad perceptive actor, but you cant pull it off if you are twice the size of the character you are portraying. I hope it falls through in a way, there should be no film until theres the perfect person to play her, and lord only knows how long that would take.

Cinema's a great medium. It works mainly through close ups and medium shots. Full shots where you can see the full stature of a group of actors aren't always necessary.

When I watch Dusty on that BBC video I don't immediately recognise that she's relatively short. She looks taller in those lovely gowns. But not 9' 3" it must be said!

I'm thinking of the stature this movie could have with Kidman and Cunningham behind it. It would be an A list movie; it could be Oscar territory. There could be a great Dusty (not Nicole) soundtrack. Most of all I believe Dusty will be treated with intelligent respect.

🇸🇰 I totally agree with Boztiggs, theres no way Nicole should play Dusty,shes what 5'9 and Dusty was 5'3.Sorry but she should step aside and try and fine an unknown and use Dustys recordings,because no one compares to Dustys voice. 😊

Well, it was good to see so many differing responses to Dusty Movie, while i must agree with the Majority that Nicole Kidman is obviously not the ideal Choice of actresses to portray dusty, i strongly believe that there must be A British Actress who can accomplish this, It is only fair to us fans, who after all, will benefit most from the movie. And, don't you think it is what Dusty's memory deserves.?? Nothing but the best to portray the best.?

I am not that worried about Nicole Kidman's height, I am sure that Hollywood can compensate for it. I am much more concerned about the singing.
