Yesterday i had a co-worker approach and ask if I had any Dusty Springfield Albums. I said, sure, you know it! He then asked if I might have a version of If You Go Away. He said that he'd heard other artists cover the song; however, hadn't heard anyone who could do it justice besides Dusty. It was pretty neat hearing a co-worker express something so positive about Dusty. It made my day

That's great Millissa!.....sadly most, if not all, of my co-workers are not familiar with Dusty, ones of my generation knew of her but don't have recordings (except one), younger ones don't know Dusty at all.....they're all more interested in their flippin' Football! 😡

Still, it's their loss.....not ours! 😊👍

This week we had a temp in at work and she inadvertently used my 'Dusty' mug 😊 She said with a wink, "is this Dusty as in dirty or as in Springfield" and got a chorus of "Springfield"!

About a month ago I was interviewing one of my patients, a lady with reasonably advanced dementia. We were in her room and the radio was playing and Dusty came on. I asked the lady if she had liked Dusty when she was younger and she said she had. We ended up chatting about Dusty for a few moments, which was lovely considering she couldn't recall much because of her illness.

When Dusty's very last CD came out in 1995, I bought a copy and showed it to my 'significant other' at the time. She had no idea who or what a "Dusty Springfield" was. She was born in late 1960 - so, you can see why. She did vaguely remember "Son Of A Preacher Man"; yet, she was only 8 when that was a hit.

Long story short - after I played the CD, I couldn't get it away from her. She wore it out... then, I noticed my other Dusty CD's were gone. She had them in her car!!! 🤪🤪

Just goes to show ya - if they hear Dusty, they like Dusty 😊

Oooo this is fun, listening to these stories 🤪 Great idea for a thread

Milissa 🤪

With all us young ones being into MySpace these days, whenever we meet new people it's not 'what's your mobile number?' it's 'what's ya myspace address?' We have a new girl at work and she asked for my myspace address so i gave it to her. I warned her that she was gonna be bombarded with Dusty as soon as she looked on my profile! I told her all about Dusty and how i go to Dusty Day and am part of a Dusty forum.. she thought that Dusty Springfield was a male country singer! She didnt even get her confused with Slim Dusty as some people do! And now everyone at work calls me 'Forum Joiner' 🤪

You are bringing up Nicole in the right way, Mary!

Seems we're all on the same page about promoting Dusty wherever and however we can--spreading Dusty Love Around the World is how I put it on the website, I think. Wish I had a bit more time ATM and I'd share some tales of prostelytizing! (hope I spelled that right)

I have a little thing... well I was in JB HIFI the other day, and they have this top 10 dvd section which faces the entire store...You can't miss it from any direction...

... I am probably a shop assistants nightmare.

I replaced every dvd 1-10 with the Dusty Live at the Albert Hall Dvd. It was like.. my DUSTY tribute.

Everyone should know about Dusty. It's important thing in life... I was just helping 🤪

Feel this thread needs a name change, but not sure what it would be, so on with my story....

Today I went in a record/CD store in Ptown...kinda a cool place that had some old movie posters and record albums framed on the walls. Sell a lot of disco remixes as well as regular CDs. The owner had a half dozen different Dusty CDs for sale, which was nice. Anyway, I gave him my LTD card and started talking to him. I'm going to send him a copy of some Dusty remixes...he was quite excited cuz he'd only heard of one or two. Where did you get them? he said amazed. I asked if we might sell some of our tshirts for charity, and he's open to that...so I'll be continuing the discussion with him in a few weeks. He said, oh Dusty is popular, and her fans that come in here are serious and know what they want!! Anyway, always nice to spread some Dusty love, and hope we might get us a good outpost here in town. Go Dusty!! If I ever get my DVD and see that it play son American TV DVD as rumored I'm gonna suggest he order some of those too!
