PS I certainly don't think I've seen it before. It's not the loveliest dress I've ever seen before. Perhaps Dusty had a brief stint as a shepherdess during those wilderness years?

if you look at the description you will see it isnt her dress just a dress that looks like something "they" thought she would have worn in that era. they have been sneaky with the title and description which makes you think it was her dress. what a cheek!! I hope noone falls for it.

I've read it through a couple of times Liz and all I can see in the description is "Personally owned and worn dress", maybe I'm missing something. I've a feeling it's been on before and we commented then on the fact that it looked rather cheap. It's possible she wore it, there's no way we would have seen pics of Dusty in every item she owned.

I don't see it either, Carole. Anyway, I asked the seller a few questions about it.

I don't think this one has been on line before. The dress looks more like a robe or night gown to me. I also don't see anything about they thought she should have worn either.

Sorry Carole, we seem to be at cross purposes here the pink dress isn't what I saw, it was a lookalike type 60s party dress. I have only just seen this pink one. I can't believe Dusty wore this though? you have seen them all through the years Carole so I'm thinking you would have seen it. It's not subtle is it? It also looks really long so maybe anyone trying to buy it thinking it's hers should ask the seller the length of it??

I have to say this dress is horrible. I can't believe Dusty would've worn this thing. But with Dusty, I've learned never to be too surprised by anything! Maybe she wore it in a TV comedy skit.

Those certificates of authenticity are probably not worth the paper they are written on. Sotheby's or Christies = Yes. Action Hollywood Auctions and Corner Collectibles = No!
