Apart from the Royal Albert Hall and the NME Poll winners concerts what live concert footage of Dusty exists? (I mean excluding TV studio performances.)

Also were any of her live shows with The Echoes recorded an audio tape?

There's Live At Her Majesty's and Saturday Night Out but they may not be what you're meaning. I can't think of anything else. If only some Palladiums or the Talk of the Town would turn up.

Yes - it's such a shame the technology wasn't around that we have today.

Thanks Carole, I hadn't thought of those, plus I suppose there is the Rough Trade concert Dusty guested on.

I think it's tragic that no footage of Dusty's numerous 1960s concert appearances exists, especially as she did so many. I live in hope that there's some Super 8 footage or something in somebody's attic somewhere. I doubt it.

Hi I'm still here!! My computer went haywire the other week and I lost a lot of things I was working on. I have been really busy lately and have far too much to do. I thought that when I retired last December I could take it easy. No such luck..

As regards the films and things I was given a round tuit a couple of years ago, but it is not working at the moment. I hope that it starts working again very soon. I have quite a few personal photos that I will try a put up for everyone to have a look at. Also the film I have of Pat's wedding.

I know it's not part of this subject but it's good to see people like Pat,Fred, Johnny, Vic and others getting some credit as regards Dusty.

It was hard years ago to get things either filmed or recorded as the equipment then was very bulky and setting up mikes and cameras would have or could have been a real problem..

We did a lot of touring then a lot of one nighters but also tons of weeks here and there. If it could have been and should have been done when we did the clubs. I don't think any of the other artist of the time did it either. It would have been fantastic to have those memories to see now. I still have lots of memories but only in my head. There could still be recordings out there somewhere. If only I had hindsight!!!

Dougie,

Check the film you have of Pat's wedding. I didn't go into the Registry Office but was out the back with another fan, Eileen Nairn, and even spoke to Dusty then. Took a photo of Dusty and others on the day.
