Someone obviously gave it to Dusty that night but I don't think it was one of our gang. After the two shows we got a lift back to Coventry in the back of the Echoes van, what groupies☺

I love this thread too and agree with Bosseh that it's the best evah. :) For those of us who ever saw Dusty perform, these are the next best thing.

Hi All

The guy behind Dusty was Alan Dunn who would drive Dusty about sometimes when I was not around. Alan would later through Pat and Dusty get the job of Mick Jagger's on road manager as against business manager and has been with him since the 60's. Great job goes everywhere with him, Alan is a really lovely guy. Not too sure if he is still with him, more than likely!! Hope to catch up with him when I go to England in April 2010..🚗

Cheers Duggie

I almost asked you about that guy Duggie! I've always wondered who he was but nobody told me before! I felt he was with Dusty (as was Peppi) but wondered if he was just club management or something. Thanks for solving the mystery 🤪 It was Alan Dunn who shared a tandem with her once too but until now, I never made the connection.

HARDLY the sort of pose you expect the lady Springfield to adopt . . . but that's how bystanders saw Dusty arrive at London's Grosvenor House Hotel in Park Lane last Wednesday when she provided cabaret at a swish charity event, the Alexandra Rose Ball.

Miss Springfield, it seems, disgusted at the rising cost of living, increase in road taxes and spiralling petrol prices, and also guiltily aware of the exorbitant price she has just paid for a house in Kensington, had decreed it would be Economy Week, bought a tandem for two (chauffeur Alan Dunn was up front) and pedalled furiously from her Knightsbridge flat to Grosvenor House.

Halfway round Hyde Park Corner, however, her bicycle clips fell off, leaving those baggy trousers billowing in the breeze! But she made it—and here's Alan Dunn helping her out of the saddle.

Yes I can! I bought it for her as I thought she may like it, It was the only thing I could buy that was sort of Casterways related, being it was a sailor!

Well, memory loss again Cas! Me I mean. I suppose that's why you were taking a picture of Dusty holding the doll. Duh!

A couple more for the weekend, neither taken by me.

Awesome pics! 🙌

That's such a short dress in the last pic!

Great pic of Dusty and Glyn!

Dougie, did you say that you'll be in UK in April 2010? Does that mean that you'll be at Dusty Day? Hope so! It could be SO cool to have you there!
