thanks again for all the fan photos. Dusty seemed so approachable back then...how lucky you all were to not only get that close but to get your photos with her.
I love that last outfit...but uhm...I don't know about that hat. I see she is carrying her 45's onto the plane... wonder if there was a record player waiting on board.
what a character she was. 😊

It's the hat in the black and white drawing Paula, somehow it looks better in black and white. Remember, you said something like WOW that hat has some presence. LOL

Maybe she was signing some records for her fans?

I've always thought that hat was a rather strange thing to travel in, I mean what was she thinking that morning, "oh, I'll wear the hat with the garden on it"? I'm sure there was info on this, probably in a Bulletin. Heathrow I'd think. And Einstein is in her hand too. I don't remember seeing that first one before Cas, so thanks.

yes indeed, Wendy..it certainly does have presence 😊

..and I agree that it makes for a fabulous pencil drawing....it just clashes with that sharp little pants suit. 😊

I almost asked you about that guy Douggie! I've always wondered who he was but nobody told me before! I felt he was with Dusty (as was Peppi) but wondered if he was just club management or something. Thanks for solving the mystery 🙏 It was Alan Dunn who shared a tandem with her once too but until now, I never made the connection.

HARDLY the sort of pose you expect the lady Springfield to adopt . . . but that's how bystanders saw Dusty arrive at London's Grosvenor House Hotel in Park Lane last Wednesday when she provided cabaret at a swish charity event, the Alexandra Rose Ball.

Miss Springfield, it seems, disgusted at the rising cost of living, increase in road taxes and spiralling petrol prices, and also guiltily aware of the exorbitant price she has just paid for a house in Kensington, had decreed it would be Economy Week, bought a tandem for two (chauffeur Alan Dunn was up front) and pedalled furiously from her Knightsbridge flat to Grosvenor House.

Halfway round Hyde Park Corner, however, her bicycle clips fell off, leaving those baggy trousers billowing in the breeze! But she made it—and here's Alan Dunn helping her out of the saddle.

Just a bit more information re Alan. As you know Pat was a great roller skater and her skating club was The Southern Skating Club. Alan was also a member as was I. One of the things you can do as a skater to keep fit is to cycle (same leg muscles) and a lot of skaters also competed in cycle races Alan did this. So Dusty would have been very safe with him. They got along really well as I said a lovely guy. 😊

I wonder who those people are with her? The lady wearing blue and black and the gentleman next to her...

Thanks Cas and Carol...the photos you've posted are absolutely stunning...!!!!

As someone who never ever saw Dusty in person these pics are such a revelation and bring her into real life and away from Iconland (where she usually lives in my brain!)

They are all truly wonderful, so joyous and give out such a warmth and generosity of spirit.

I know it sounds a bit daft but seeing Dusty smile so naturally for the cameras really just makes you love her even more, if that were humanly possible.

Thanks guys for sharing your personal memories with those of us who can only dream of what it must have been like to see her in person!
