I would love to have been a 'fly on the front door' when Dusty opened it... and found Sandie Shaw standing there.

Did she ask her in?

I wonder how the conversation went?

I'm wonderin what you would have said to Dusty had she unexpectedly opened the door to you?...After you picked yourself up from the floor that is!...

If you prefer:

You can even 'pretend' that you were 'another person' knocking on the door, say Burt Bacharach or Jerry Wexler or Dionne Warwick... The choice is yours...

You get the gist?...

Hope so, I haven't explained it too well.

If I had come 'just' as a fan, I would have died straight away had she opened. I would have been SO embarrassed! But let's say I had a 'mission', like raising money for the local cat shelter. I guess I could pull that one off quite professionally. Though I'd probably blush enough to make passing cars stop thinking the lights were red. And I guess I'd try to prolong the conversation with "I can see you have cats, what breed are they" or something stupid like that! LOL And at the end I'd hope to find enough courage to ask her for her autograph. - Then I'd go to the nearest pub and hyperventilate into a Magners cider.

Great reply Corinna... 🍋

..and of course you count Mary..

You are amongst the few on here that have held a conversation with Dusty.

I knocked on Dusty's door and she said 'Step inside love'. I wasn't sure what to do as 'I've been wrong before'. I said 'If I thought you'd ever change your mind' I will..

I'm officially jealous of Mary. Love you dear, but I'm jealous. What I wouldn't give to have spoken to her when she was alive.

I'd probably blurt out that I love her voice and music and hoped she didn't mind that I wanted to meet her. 😬😬 Then I'd probably chat about cats and the garden and hope that I got invited in to chat over a cuppa 😊😊
