W O W W O W W O W W

What an evening over two hours of five excellent musicians, 2 back up singers and Katy Setterfield, Dusty Springfield and .... plus 10 or more costume changes and a standing ovation.

I won't spoil things and review the show, but if you haven't bought a ticket go and buy one, you won't regret it.

We arrived early and I was lucky to have a chat with Andy, Katy's husband. Audiences at the previous shows had been good, hopefully all is going well.

After the show Katy signed autographs and posed for pictures, even quiet, shy me got an autograph and Joy just happened to have her camera with her.

Katy did say that she is to tour Australia next year so keep your eyes open you Sheilagh's 😊

The programme is excellent and there were 3 different Katy CD's on sale, Christmas came early!!!!

Tom did she wear her "Spooky" dress? The one she won at Dusty Day that was actually Madeline's dress. I would love to see her in it singing Spooky!

Tom also asked if I would post the following note along with the photos:

"Yes, it is Tom, who looks like a goldfish, who last saw his face some 14 years ago. The beard is being regrown. Serves me right for going to a Croatian barber!!!

Who the other guy is, I don't know, but Katy looks deep in thought."

I suspect you just might, Clare lol... I leave in an hours time and the concert hall is less than ten mins drive away from my front door, so I am getting all excited now lol. I've got a present for Katy which I will give her this evening, but more on that later ;)

Back online :)

I took my father to see Katy at the Motherwell Concert Theatre earlier. He clapped for nearly three hours solid, so I assume he enjoyed it :)

Katy was sensational. From the opening bars of "Goin' Back" to the final echoes of "You Don't Have To Say You Love Me", and every second in between. On stage were Katy, her two backing singers, Julie and Zoe, and her five musicians, including husband Andy, to whom she paid a lovely tribute during the show. The singers and musicians were all really good and very professional throughout.

The first part of the show opened with a Dusty overture - several signature tunes beautifully worked together to create the feel of the evening.. and then Katy came on as Dusty; she sang a range of songs, from the big favourites to some of the less well known numbers, giving each the Dusty touch. For me, one of the best parts of the entire performance was that Katy did not just stand there and sing; she wove the songs into the story of Dusty's career, interspersing the singing with monologues paying tribute to various albums and to Dusty as a person; and I have to say that this girl knows her stuff. She knew not only the details of Dusty's life and career, but clearly understood the significance and importance of various events and moments. She also paid tribute to Dusty as one of the primary reasons why she (Katy) became a musician in the first place.

Following a brief intermission, Katy reappeared on stage and sang again, this time as herself, along with a few special guests.. ;)

For the final part of the show, it was Dusty again, with more favourites and a fantastic encore. And guess who was first to give her a standing ovation? lol..

The entire show was professional, highly enjoyable and very entertaining. Katy sang wonderfully and was in fine form. There were numerous costume changes and she looked fantastic - in the course of the evening, she proved herself to be an excellent performer and all round vocalist.

Following the show, I got a chance to chat with her for while, speaking about various things and about the tour itself, which she is enjoying very much; thankfully, she isn't finding the travelling too troublesome and seems to be enjoying every moment of it.

Two of her CDs were on sale - "You Don't Have To Say You Love Me - the songs of Dusty Springfield", and "Moments of Pleasure" - a collection of her own favourites. The title of this album comes from a Kate Bush song and this was one of the things we spoke about - Katy is a huge fan of Kate (just like yours truly), which was really nice to discover. The souvenir brochure is really lovely and very high quality, not to mention very reasonably priced. The photographs it contains are really good, including several taken in Las Vegas during her time there. And LTD is mentioned in it, with links both to the website and to the forum itself :) There is also an extended interview with the Superfans, including our very own Carole, which was really interesting to read.

I also mentioned earlier that I had a gift for Katy. I saved the thread on The One And Only and combined the six million pages of that into a single file, which I put on a CD; the cover and label for the CD was Wendy's fantastic portrait of Katy as Dusty, the one she was given at Dusty Day. I thought it would be a nice reminder of the journey she has made, as well as the part LTD and its' members played in that journey. I hope she enjoys reading through it.

Thankfully, i'll be back to see Katy perform again in a couple of weeks at the Pavilion Theatre in Glasgow, which I am looking forward to; I told her I would be up in the box along with Heather and we want a wave lol.

My favourite moments from the evening? There were a few. The opening number, which she sang wonderfully; 'All I See Is You', which gave me goosebumps again; and the final number, 'Quiet Please, There's A Lady On Stage', which was the perfect ending prior to the encore.

It was a really tremendous evening and if you haven't already bought tickets to go see Katy live, I highly recommend doing so.

Go Katy!!!

Here are some photos from the evening..

PS. By any chance did Katy wear her "Spooky" dress as one of the changes?

PPS. Just editing to add, that we have something in common about the first to stand for an ovation! 😊 sounds like a great show , Will...and what a really sweet gift you gave to Katy. I am sure she will treasure it. Katy is a really nice person and I'm glad it's all going well for her. I'm sorry Katy..but I still am not crazy about a few of the hairdos...the bangs aren't right...but its the performance that counts and she is a winner.

( I did like the wig she wore in Las Vegas better..wonder where it went..maybe its been rearranged?)

I think it depends on the entertainer. At a Gene Pitney concert you were able to take as many pictures as you wanted, but videos were not permitted.

LOL Funnily enough, Katy squealed when she spotted me wearing the Dusty polo shirt and she ran her finger over the signature, saying "oh you're wearing your Dusty shirt!" lol.

And speaking of clothes, I quite liked that I finally got to see her wearing all those wonderful costumes she wore for 'The One And Only' - I have never seen her actually dressed as Dusty before last night. Very glamorous!

I'm going over to Cardiff on Friday, with a view to seeing Katy, albeit I haven't got tickets yet, cause I don't know where to get them, so we are hoping we can get them at the door. If not it will be a few drinks round Cardiff, and a real, and home.

I really enjoyed reading your review and story, Will. It almost made up for how jealous I am that you got to see a full Katy concert! Your enthusiasm is truly contagious.

I'm glad you got to meet up with Katy afterwards, and what a nice gift to give her...and what a gorgeous cover. I think that's one of Wendy's best efforts, and that's saying something!

I'm also pleased you snuck in your camera and got some good shots before you were busted. I know a website where the one of her arms out wide would look great on. 😊

Glad you'll get to see her again, too.

Wendy, isn't that the concert Rob is going to?

Looking at the list of towns where Katy is playing I am laughing to myself because I'm clueless as to the location of most of them on a map. On the other hand, quite a few are the names of cities here in Massachusetts. What a 'coincidence'. LOL.

Nancy - yes it would be - as it's in Cardiff - that is the nearest place I can go and see her.

I'm afraid my arrangements got a bit stuffed up, due to e-mails not arriving, and it's only today that I realised we were going over to Cardiff - I'm going with a friend who is Welsh and I'm hoping she knows the venue, and I haven't got tickets yet, so hoping we can get in.

Cardiff is just a threequarter hour train ride from Bristol, across from England into Wales - we don't need a passport because we are still friends.

Ok Will - thanks I've just rung and got the tickets booked - thankyou.

Wend

Hey Wendy, do you still have my mobile number, perhaps we can meet up in the interval? Keep a look out for me. Will try to e-mail you tomorrow

I agree with everyone about everything (for a change ☺) especially about the hair. I guess no one can keep us Dusty fans 100% satisfied ☺

It's in the post, Rob lol ;)

And thanks for posting the article - very interesting to read :)

I hope both you and Wendy have a fantastic evening tomorrow in Cardiff; and when you get to speak with Katy after the show, please give her my love.

Absolutely fantastic show last evening, Katy is an awesome singer, but then you know that.

Here's acouple of pohoties. Wendy, her friend Chris and me and then me and Katy

Will, i gave her your love, She told me "I love Will" 🤪

Thanks Rob - we didn't wait around to see Katy as we didn't know how long she would be coming out, and if there would be lots of people waiting for her autograph, and as we had a last train to catch decided to leave it this time.

As it was there was a long delay on the track as some idiot got drunk and decided to flake out on the track, so the police helicopter and the search police had to come and try and find him and we got stuck in Newport and couldn't proceed for over an hour waiting for the search to end.

Anyway th
