I was excited to just get home and find the brown wrapped mag in the mail..knew what it was right away. Have not yet opened..waiting to sit down, have a glass of wine and unveil the (what is usually) brilliant cover...I'm surprised that I have this much patience. 🙄

I got my copy this morning and opened it straight away - love the front cover piccie! Read some of it but thought I'd spread it out over a few days so as not to get too carried away with excitement!!! 🙄👍

Received my copy on Monday. Stunning picture of Dusty on front cover. Where does Paul get them from?!?!? Read it from cover to cover on Monday evening, much to my wifes annoyance.!

There are very few such fan publications published anymore anywhere. Paul does a beautiful job. You will not be disappointed! And thank you for supporting his work.

Should get the cover photo from Paul soon.
But now that the Aussies have there, we can begin discussing the content.

Did you all see the interview with Margie Adam?

I was lucky enough to see that front cover picture a little while back and knew it would be a winner. Only got around to opening the envelope in bed last night after a long day's travel but found the interview with Brooks Arthur fascinating, my eyes were closing but I had to finish it. He was obviously completely enamoured with Dusty and he filled in a lot of gaps about the making of Longing and the concept behind it. I like to spread out the reading of the Bulletin, but I can never resist going right through it and looking at all the pictures, hoping for one's I've never seen before. And Paul never fails to please.

Wow Carole - that's a beautiful and rare portrait - really captures her vulnerability.
