You arrive at Mr. Springfield's door and he unexpectedly asks you in for a chat. 😬😄

What would you say to him?

What would you ask him?

'I'd be glad to chat about anything you want to.'

If it was OK, I'd ask him about his career and his child-hood and why he went into show-business given that he was a gifted, extremely intelligent scholar with academic qualifications coming out of his ears. Why did he take that particular path?

I'd ask him about that kid sister of his.

..and of course, if it was OK, I'd get around to just that. Answers to my initial questions would be just fine though.

Would ask him if he would like to contribute some thoughts to this forum from time to time. He certainly could give us some quite interesting insights.

I'd say "OMFG!" Then I'd ask for a detailed account of his life up to the point when I knocked on his door, with particular insight into that rather famous sister of his!

I'd ask(after initial pleasantries) 😊 whether he had any as yet unheard recordings of either The Springfields or Dusty solo, stashed away somewhere. 🌍

Surprised at the lack of questions for Tom!...🙄🙄

I thought everyone was desperate for him to make himself available.😄

I would ask him to go through all Dusty's back catalogue with a decent producer, someone like George Martin and see if they can strip them back and get her voice where it should be ,in front of the music instead of drowned out at the back. her less well accepted albums as she tried several comebacks were all orchestration and her voice in as an afterthought. I also think he should make sure that all she recorded was put out there in case there are any gems hidden away in the archives.

"Tom, apart from Carmen Miranda who did you most admire in the music business?"

"Tom out of the songs wot you wrote, which is your favourite?😄

..and which is your fave performance of one of your own songs?"

"Tom, did you keep in touch with Dusty when she lived in America?"

....Help!...I'm just getting chucked out of the front door.🙄🙄😄

I'd just like to have a chat and see where it led, feeding him a few lines obviously. Nothing really specific, just "tell me your story". How did it feel to be the musical prodigy and then have your little sis come along and fly right by you😄 I would be interested in why he seemed to disappear from the world, professionally anyway, and had he ever written songs specifically with Dusty in mind, that she never recorded. I know he kept in touch with Dusty in the 70's as I've seen a couple of photo's of them both in America. I would like to know what it was like to go on holiday with Dusty, especially when they went to Carnival. Did anyone recognise her and did she really dance till dawn barefoot😄

I'd just happen to have my guitar with me and I'd ask him if he'd play some of his Springfields and Seekers hits with me. Of course, he'd agree and we'd go down this list: IOD, STAGN, Georgy Girl (my favorite of his), Carnival is Over, A Place of Our Own, etc., but also some of the solo songs on Love's Philosophy and Sun Songs. I'd ask him too if he still remembered all the words to Night School. :)

A few hours of conversation would be interspersed between the songs--his memories of performances, inspirations, etc. I would imagine that talk of Dusty would come up quite naturally, unless, of course, he made a point of *not* talking about Dusty (which would be very revealing in itself).

After this initial talk, I'd definitely ask him if I could come round the next day and the next day and the next!

It would be interesting to see how the tea time conversations unfolded on their own--all topics prompted by talk of the songs.

A nice dream!

Annie

I'd ask him about himself...nothing more personal than he'd want to reveal, but I would like to know his life story, and like Corinna so elegantly put it, what the h**! he's been doing since 1970.
