Two totally different voices great in their own right.
but I got to give it to Linda, this song was just made for her..

Of the two versions Linda's wins but neither can hold a candle to the original by Dee Dee Warwick or the big hit by Betty Everett.

Oh! - how I agree, and there was me thinking no other person had heard Dee Dee Warwick's version!! lol Saying that they are all good (it's such a great song). Dee Dee's is different musically, but is still wonderful. Betty has the definitive version though.

Well,as we're talkin bout other versions of this song, and whilst I don't doubt that Dee Dee Warwick and Betty Everett released very commendable versions, the version that was a hit in the UK was The one by the Mersey band 'The Swinging Blue Jeans'

To be honest,up until recent times it was the only version I was aware of.

..and I LOVED it!

Oh Carole

Whilst this is the best Swinging Blue Jeans single by a mile (the depth of 'feeling', 'soul' and 'movement' are outstanding) - you really should have got out more in that mini skirt, back then. This is an obvious example of how the American original was ripped off by the UK acts at the time - I don't really blame them - they are great songs. However Betty Everett deserved the hit record.

I wish we could find a version of Miss Warwick's; I'd love to hear it.

Out of the three versions here, I liked Miss Dusty's the best. She combines the passion of Miss Ronstadt's version, the understated power of Miss Everett's version and adds something a little special to it to make it her own. In their own right, all three versions are quite good. I wish she'd recorded a studio version of it, though.

It is a great song: 😊

...Between the two 'contenders' I think Linda just takes it....but only just. 😊

Thanks John..I like it..its by far the best version, followed by Betty.

I think Dusty's rendering is better than Linda's.

I wish the audio on Dusty's was better. Linda's version very good but not up to Dusty standards.

Thanks so much Humboldt! I actually do like this one the best of the four. She really gets into the song, and though the arrangement is a little more spare than the others, it actually works in her favor; it makes the song funkier and allows her vocals to shine. Thanks again for that!

I do, quite 😊. Part of the reason I like it, besides the fact that it's just a good song and well sung, is that I tend to gravitate towards the lesser-known siblings of more famous singers. I like to find out why they're not as famous (Carolyn & Erma Franklin, Dee Dee, etc). Dee Dee certainly deserved to be as famous as Dionne, there's no doubt she can sing.

All these versions are good. They're just different. I'd prefer to dance to Betty and Dee Dee. To sit and listen to Dusty's cool phrasing and then play a bit of air guitar to Linda's version.

Thanks John for the fab Dee Dee download 😊

I love Dusty's version best Nancy, and the Swinging Blue Jeans was pure 60's Carole R! the one we danced to.
