

The Archives of Let's Talk Dusty!

Home | Profile | Active Topics | Active Polls | Members | Search | FAQ

Username: Password: [input fields] [Login button]

Save Password

Forgot your Password?

All Forums

- Let's Talk Dusty! The Forum
Getting It Right
topical news

Forum Locked Topic Locked
Printer Friendly

Author

Topic

karenina

Little by little

280 Posts

Posted - 29/01/2007 : 23:34:54

Dont tell me I am the only one up again. In view of the ruling on Catholic Adoption agencies does anyone know whether Dusty ever expressed a desire to have or bring up children. I have seen headlines about her being 'dad' to certain children but didnt bother reading it. I honestly wont be offended this time if you just tell me to mind my own business.

allherfaces

Administrator

Posted - 30/01/2007 : 00:12:15

Seems like I've read a comment on this somewhere.....calling the experts.....

"Yesterday's gone. Love lead me on."
~Roll Away

USA
14235 Posts

Tim

Where am I going?

Posted - 30/01/2007 : 01:21:36

She wasn't the Motherly type according to an interview from her from about 1970.. Maybe that changed later as she matured. I bet she was great with other people's children, just didn't want any of her own. Her family background was maybe an influence.

Tim x

United Kingdom
3422 Posts

Mads

Where am I going?

Posted - 30/01/2007 : 08:44:26

The thing with Frank Allen haha what a champ

Didnt she say she thought she'd be a terrible mother....although Dusty thought she'd be terrible at everything except making scrambled eggs hahaha RANDOM.

Australia
3323 Posts

Love&&more love

Andrew

I start counting

Posted - 30/01/2007 : 10:48:38

I've always thought Dusty would have made a fantastic aunt but maybe not such a good mum - don't know though, maybe having kids would have given her life some direction in the 'lost years'? Who knows, all ifs and buts.

I do remember reading that Dusty desperately wanted children later in life. I think it was a copy article from the National Enquirer or some such tabloid which was reprinted in the Bulletin commemorative edition after she died - anyone else remember this?

Andrew

karenina
Little by little
★

280 Posts

Posted - 31/01/2007 : 21:55:00

I think she would have made a brilliant mum but would have always doubted that was the case. When my Dusty obsession spilled over into my real life my middle one said whats with all the secrets -is she your real mum or something. And with all she went through I think that she would have listened to her children and made sure they were safe even if she couldnt cope with her own burdens and I would have been proud. Other people can put a different slant on it but the revelations about the lost years in Dwd didnt bother me its whats been left unsaid that did.

Teda
Little by little
★

USA
384 Posts

Posted - 01/02/2007 : 02:13:37

She never wanted children, thats what she said to me. St.Teresa

karenina
Little by little
★

280 Posts

Posted - 01/02/2007 : 10:14:47

thank you for sharing that. If it was a happy confident decision then good luck to her but if it was because of her childhood then thats so sad. Tell me to mind my own business but do you know if she remembered everything that happened or was there a mental block and did she ever confront her parents. Thank you St Teresa, I think I called you St Theresa by mistake. She came later, her 'chalice was full to the brim, full of love.'

Teda
Little by little
★

USA
384 Posts

Posted - 03/02/2007 : 02:27:31

Oh My My My. Teda.

allherfaces
Administrator
★★★★★

Posted - 03/02/2007 : 15:27:37

The tone on this thread needs some adjustments.

Thanks,
Your friendly moderator

"Yesterday's gone. Love lead me on."
~ Roll Away

USA
14235 Posts

karenina
Little by little
★

280 Posts

Posted - 04/02/2007 : 02:35:00

Help please tell me Im pyschic not psycho. I thought I saw something but its gone. It didnt offend us at all so I dont understand why it disappeared.Dont hide behind the sofa because Im going to get behind mine and stay there. Ive got a mission to turn a gray feather white, nothing else. If I can explain somewhere why I think the way that I do I will. Why are you on an open forum when there are so many closed ones?

Topic

Forum Locked Topic Locked

Jump To:

Printer Friendly

The Archives of Let's Talk Dusty! © 2006-2009 Nancy J. Young, Laura Howard, Rob Wilkins, Corinna Muller

