Came across this earlier and it could be of great interest if only I could get it to work properly! I think it's a fairly lengthy interview with Dusty, but after about 1 min of listening to Dusty talk, it cuts out on me. Can anyone more technical than me, download this properly and give links? Please 😊

Hi Carole

Haven't had a chance to listen to the whole thing yet, but thanks so much- sounds like a great interview!

I'm not sure why yours didnt work, mine was fine!
Do yousendit files work okay for you?

I did just manage to listen to the whole thing right through from your link Mads but it may just have been my connections last night, not sure. It's more like 1985 than 87, the interviewer (for want of a better word!) confused me in her write up by saying they discussed the PSB's and Amsterdam, which they don't here.

thanks for this Carole and Mads. Yes it's definitely 1985 but maybe the 1987 interview is on tape as well and will be posted on the site in the future.

Carole this clip says Part 1, do you think somebody might post Pt 2 at a later date??

I saved that site...I'll be checking 😊

Yes, I thought that too Mads and Clive. She would have had to have done another interview two years later to be able to talk about the PSB's. Maybe she did. I just found the original Cath Carroll article from the NME. It's dated 17th Aug 1985 and is headed Blue Eyed Soul, Black Mascara. Unfortunately it's too big to go in my scanner and it's also gone rather brown with age.

Thank you for the link carole, I had no problem with it. I kept thinking it was so familiar, maybe I have read the article.

had done any recording between Cameo and It Begins Again she seemed to avoid answering the question, saying it was a blur and talking instead of what she had recorded since.
Do you think she misunderstood the question or was she uncomfortable discussing the Longing sessions ?

I think Dusty has hardly ever been able to put her recordings in order! Saying that time was a blur was probably true though. Maybe if the interviewer had actually said the title of the album she was more than likely referring to (at least if she knew her stuff), it might have helped Dusty along a little. I did think it funny when Dusty mentioned Your Love Still Brings Me To My Knees cracking her up and said almost under her breath "and while you're down there"!

Thanks very much for this Carole,

I really enjoyed listening to Dusty chat. Although I thought Cath could have asked better questions, I liked that contemporary chat about that 'idiot' Donna Summer and Dusty talking about 'White Heat' and her favourite track, 'Soft Core' and how the struggle with the album broke her heart and all those record companies she was with that folded. But she sounds pretty cool about it like well..that's life. I bet Cath had some great questions in her head but was too awestruck to ask them.

I liked Cath's posting too. I remember the days when Dusty lived in the radio too! Thanks again.

Thanks for the link! Dusty had a lovely speaking and voice and accent. I wasn't aware of the Donna Summer incident...

Thanks for the interview. Does anybody know where this took place? I ask because when there is a ringing of the telephone Dusty asks " Are we expecting anybody?" which I thought at first was her just joking and the voice in the background says "I don't know".

Donna apparently said something like AIDS was a punishment from God. She denied she made the statement. At the time my friends and I just thought she was having a doolally new born Christian moment and didn't really take it that seriously. But it was a blot and her records were burned in protest by some.

the interviewer Cath Carroll says the interview took place in a house on Regal Lane, near Regents Park, London. I wonder was Dusty was staying there or just using it as a venue for interviews that day.
