50 glorious years! (#p182569)

by daydreamer » Sat Apr 23, 2016 5:04 pm

This week marks the anniversary of Dusty hitting the top of the charts with 'You Don't Have To Say You Love Me'. It was to be her only number 1. It was voted a miss on Juke Box Jury, recorded by many after Dusty and probably caused her much anxiety every time she had to hit those last 3 'Believe Me's! In celebration of the recording, let's see how many posts we can add in relation to the song, be it pictures, memories, cuttings, articles or videos.

great to celebrate this even though it was a travesty that it was to be her only number one.
a very loose connection to this is seeing that at number thirty in the chart we find her pal Norma with her hit single. 😊

Yes, I'd noticed that too Liz 😊 A few weeks later it reached No.4 on the US charts and similar in most other countries. The fact that it was Dusty's only number 1 was likely down to the strength of competition around when she was close to the top of the charts. She certainly deserved top spot with 'I Only Want to Be With You', 'I Just Don't Know What To Do With Myself' and 'I Close My Eyes and Count to Ten', which all reached 4 or higher.

I'll have to get to my laptop to post some images but for the moment I can comment on the ad you just posted, Carole. Brilliant design. The British flag as background... Proud branding, as you lot were dominating the pop culture scene. I can remember so many influences and references from my teenage years....in Texas. For guys the cologne was English Leather. The perfume for girls was Yardleys of London. I caled my skinny friend Twiggy. All of the fashion looks. My mom made my clothes! And these included Modrion patterns and Nehru jackets....

And back to this particular advert, could they have chosen a better photo of Dusty? ❤️

I always see Dusty teetering on the top step of the stairwell at Stanhope studios whenever I hear this song now.

Another chance to show this off - the acetate copy Dusty took home with her that day:

Thanks all for your great contributions. Just to be different, here's Pino Donaggio performing the song at San Remo. I imagine Dusty sitting in the audience and trying not to jump up and down in her seat 🤔

Its great to see all the different contributions.

I scanned some cuttings from my files, but they seem out of focus for some reason, this is about the best.

Two modest contributions:

Ralph (rest his soul) holding a fleece montage of Dusty jackets, including at least one (bottom right) of YDHTSYLM

A screen grab of Dusty singing the song on her show.

I have at least a couple more things to post later.
