Was in the Mother & Baby shop with my daughter at the weekend. Looked at a book of baby names and found the following entry for Dusty :- 'Name made popular by singer Dusty Springfield in the 1960s'. Has anyone heard of a girl (or boy) being christened Dusty.?!?

Cool!
No, I haven't... Only cats and dogs. And rabbits and hamsters and stuff.

Only known of a couple of real cute pussy cats by that name. The cleaner at my friends club was nicknamed 'Dusty' because she had a 'blonde' beehive that was back-combed and laquered to hell. It would not have moved in an earthquake.

I haven't now I think about it! I can't believe Dusty made it into a naming book...
I do like unique names though, if I ever do have a little girl, she is so going to be called Dusty! Or at least the nickname Dusty...

There was a male character on "Dallas" years ago called Dusty. He had an affair with Sue Ellen.

A girl called Dusty lived up the street from me growing up. True story!

There's also a character named Dusty on the soap "As the World Turns", though I think that's a nickname.

I don't personally know of any Dusty's but I think it would be lovely if it became a popular name because of Dusty, and you never know 😊

If you google Dusty, you will come up with various Dusty's other than Dusty Springfield. You are right about the Dusty on Dallas Will. Dusty is a name that lots of cowboys have, not sure if it's a given name or a nickname, guessing probably a combination. That is why when you go into a record store and ask for Dusty Springfield, you often get a reply of never heard of him in the US, which just burns me to end, but that's another subject!

Neither of my two daughters are named Dusty. (My wife wouldn't agree to it.!!!). My granddaughter (aged 3) says 'Dusty' when I show her a Dusty CD in the supermarket, so I'm hoping she will become a fan in the LOL Chris.

In the 4th season of L-Word, there's a female inmate called Dusty. 🙄
