by st louis blues » Sun Oct 26, 2014 5:39 am

I'm late in saying so, but thanks for all these articles. It's interesting to read the reviews from the Talk of the Town. I had been under the impression that the critics panned Dusty. She was fired after only the first night, correct? I've never understood how this happened since she was clearly very sick and tried her best to perform. It really shows a lack of respect for her talent if they did fire her on such an occasion.

I also wonder why her early '70s albums did not sell. I was surprised by how good Cameo was and many of the songs from See All Her Faces were also very good.

Yes, I don't know the full facts, but from what I have read, at the very least a compromise should have been made, a reschedule for earlier the next year perhaps? when Dusty could have sung to the best of her ability. 😡

1 2 & 3 Record Mirror 5th May 1973. These are the same article, but too big to reproduce in one go, so the makers split it in three, Sorry to confuse.

Thanks for all these posts Darren. Sad to end on a low note. Amazing how Dusty became a geriatric at 39, in someone's eyes, little did they know what was to follow in ten years or so. Today it appears people can't get enough of the "oldies" with all the revivals that are going on, but then that is music for you and long may it last.

Totally agree Pat & Carole 🍷 reading Dusty's and the other "Dinosaurs" reviews from this period, it seemed the Music Reviewers/Journalists had their own "Agenda's" starting in the Mid/late 70's which had nothing to do with Music, just what they perceived to be 'cool'. 🙄

Darren, I am not nit-picking, honest. The NME cutting probably comes from 1985 as a re-issue of Memphis Plus came out in November 1985. The NME reviewer makes reference to the fact that Memphis Plus had previously been released in 1980.

Also the next item about the play "Dusty", was the Carole mentioned influenced by one of you ? Was it ever produced in London?

Thanks Darren for this thread 24000 hits, must be a record!

I hope the author of the last article ended up feeling foolish! Big hit all over the world numpity 🙌 The show about the lady called Carol must have been the same as the one that finally came to the stage with Mari Wilson in the part of Dusty. I seem to remember being told that a few years before it finally opened in 2000, there had been a reading of the musical in London with a different cast. And no, not influenced by anyone I know, though she was a life long Dusty fan, married with two children 🙌

"Fading Dusty Springfield" what a liberty...

sometimes you despair when you see these comments... the author is probably a media studies student of about 15 who will end up working for the BBC. 🙄

That programme 'Going Back' looks really interesting.

Does anyone know if there is a copy out there somewhere? I would love to find it.

I have looked in the 'Song For You' section, but no luck!

If you look at the BBC Genome pages it lists a lot (if not all) of Dusty's radio /TV appearances. This project by the BBC is massive. I'm not sure if eventually they will put the programmes / items on the web, as and when they become available from wherever.

I don't wish to make an issue of this but the interview with Dusty and David Wigg is interesting. To me it is the first time I have actually read Dusty talking so candidly about the 70s, rather than the conjecture of others. Dusty knew herself more than anyone and because of this was able to pull herself into a better place.

Thanks again Darren.

No worries Pat, Thanks. 🙌 Yes, perhaps Dusty wanted to set the record straight Instead of being the subject of yet more conjecture.

Sorry folks I just realized in the second part of that interview I posted a badly spliced 2nd portion. 😞 I have just remedied it so you don't have to guess the words I cut out by accident. 😊🙄

Thanks Donella. 🤔👍 I Was hoping someone might tell me where this comes from. 😞 I was guessing one of the music papers???? but the name Today Special is all over the article???? Have googled 'Today' and Tony Wells but no luck. 🤔👍 Maybe the source of the interview appears in one of the Biographies using some of the quotes, but I couldn't find it in any Index or cross- reference. 🤔

I Would say 1964 was the year because Dusty mentions she's had two (Solo)?? hits up to that point.

The tragedy of course is that the tour was cancelled.

If it had been a success I'm sure she would not have spent so much time in America and have been on such a rocky road for those years in the 80's.

I agree Trek. whenever she came back to UK ,in her interviews , you could hear that she was happy to be back.

Sadly Dusty could not accept the fact that maybe she wasn't the artist she once was and retreated back to the rocky road of LA. Fortunately she did make a pretty remarkable return, via PSB, and for that she and we, her fans, are very grateful albeit for too short a time. 🌹

A difficult one for me this Trek & Pat. I sometimes think we should just be extremely grateful for the legacy and recordings we were left with, But my viewpoint and stance is tempered by the fact that over the last three years or so I have had all of Dusty's recordings and performances (that are available) in one big lump, with no gaps and no waiting for the next record, TV appearance or Concert to come along.

If I had been there right from the start like those who grew up with Dusty, I (too?) would/may have been frustrated waiting for new Dusty product to arrive in the 1970's and maybe my loyalty would have waned, Who knows??? Of course I would have loved to have seen every Dusty Concert & Live appearance and bought every record and fan merchandise at the time it came out, and would have eagerly awaited the next Dusty release and TV appearance to come, and waited to read about Dusty with baited breath in the music press, but maybe one advantage of being a newbie and missing out on so, so so much- is that I didn't have to suffer Dusty's 'lean' years. 🌹🤔

I think for me it wasn't the disappointment of cancelled concerts but the the knock on affect it all had on her life in general when she went back to the US . Some of the personal things that happened early 80's may have been avoided had those concerts gone ahead and she had stayed here for longer periods...but who knows.

As you say Darren be grateful for what we have and celebrate the legacy.

It was very good being around throughout the 60's and 70's 😊

yes agree Trekkie, it was so sad to see her so deflated by the bad press and the cancelled dates.

I remember being so excited at the thought of seeing her on top of the pops etc, after all the years she had vanished.

I was quite shocked at the way she looked and the music was the weakest she probably ever performed apart from "i'm coming home again "

which made me cry because I still loved her when all the hype died down, then she seemed to have no fan base and little positive press interest. 😞

I am convinced that if she had been managed properly and had some decent material ,that she would have been successful and not gone back to the disasters in the States with the biggest bag of low esteem imaginable. 🙄
