Carole King has just posted this on Facebook:

Carole King: In celebration of the current success of Phil Collins' new CD, GOING BACK, we'd like to share with you a vintage Dusty Springfield version of "Goin' Back." Dusty's version was recorded on June 15, 1966 at Philips Studios, Stanhope Place, London. it was released as a single on July 1, 1966, reaching #10 on the UK Singles Chart.

(I'll refrain from commenting on Phil Collins, though.) 😊 lovely to see that she is able to credit Dusty as she does. mutual admiration. 😊 a generous songwriter indeed. 🙌 it must have been wonderful to feel that her song could sound as good as it did by Dusty, a great singer and a great song.lovely 😊

Well done, Carole King! Did anyone besides me comment on her FB post about the Phil Collins' cover? I had to comment about how Dusty's version was tops -- so I'll have the fantasy that Carole read that and similar comments and decided to put the Queen's version up. 🤔

"We ❤️ Carole King!" (even though she didn't come over here with James Taylor. 😞 😊)
I absolutely love that video of Dusty, especially the li'l dance at the end...Cute!
The outfit she's wearing would look so fashionable on the streets of any big city in the UK today. 🤔
You could say fashion has gone 'Full Circle'..

Kudos to CK for giving Dusty props...I think we can say that CK knows a good thing when she hears it and she always gave Dusty high marks on singing her songs. 🤔
