I was just about to type "high up" when you posted it! I've seen the wall and I do wonder when Dusty was added, it certainly doesn't look like s there from the sixties like some of the others, but more like an afterthought. What did you think.

Unfortunately the 'Wall' has been allowed to become somewhat tatty, Which is bad considering the number of people who visit Liverpool purely for The Beatles and its general musical influences.

I don't know about Dusty being an 'Afterthought' Carole.. I think I just thought that her name had stayed 'untouched' being nearer to the top of the Wall. I know it took us ages to find it!.. I knew however, that if The Echoes had played The Cavern then it was likely that Dusty had too.

I wrote to Douggie asking him about this, and this was his reply to me:

I know that The Echoes played there at least four times, and I think that we also did it with Dusty but I don't know how many times maybe once. She I think was a bit concerned as it was Cillas home town, but she should never have worried about anything like that. It's good to know that you're remembered!!! LOL>> Douggie xxx

Could Dusty really have been scared of Cilla Fans?..Unlikely, I think..☹

I wonder if it was perhaps more of a sort of "professional courtesy" type thing?

Neil and Jason any thoughts here, what do you remember? I'm thinking that maybe I was just so thrilled to be in Liverpool, that none of it matte it didn't leave a a bad impression on me.

Of course, I would not have had an interest in Liverpool if it was not for the Beatles, Cilla or Gerry and the Pacemakers. For those of you that h been on the Ferry Across the Mersey, yes they do play the song as you board!

As I was buying postcards, there was a young woman in the store with reddish hair cashiering. I thought she looked like a young Cilla and sounc her too! I wanted to talk to her for a longer period of time, but the was a long line behind me waiting to pay for their purchases too, so it was i

Nice memories, I would love to go back and see more of Liverpool.

Strange, but I've never seen any reference to Dusty ever playing the Cavern anywhere. I don't remember it from the time in the sixties and I re absolutely everything and followed her movements religiously. She definitely played Liverpool lots, but I never saw mention of the Cavern. This i saying she didn't, just that I've never seen it documented. I have a vague memory of her saying she visited there with the Springfields but not performed.

Aw, thanks for posting that, CRI! If that lamp was in its proper place, it would light up our Dusty!
