I don't think we have a thread dedicated to one of Dusty's favorite pastimes....here is place to put any of those breaking stories. 😊

Below is one I received recently.

SPRINGFIELD AND WEISS ATTACKED GAYE WITH PLATES

Former Shangri-Las singer MARY WEISS first met MARVIN GAYE during a crockery fight with DUSTY SPRINGFIELD. The sixties star says she often took part in food and plate throwing fights with her pal Springfield to "let off steam". And the pair narrowly missed legendary soul singer Gaye with a flying plate during a fight at the Brooklyn Fox Theatre, New York. The Leader Of The Pack singer says, "She really liked to throw stuff. Dusty taught me how to throw crockery, too. She would get frustrated so she would go out and buy a couple of hundred bucks' worth of cheap crockery. "We would let off a lot of steam that way. That was how I met Marvin Gaye. He was trying to get out of his dressing room. He stuck his head out and all these plates went flying past his head."

In listening recently to Dusty singing "The second time around" which I love, I forgot that there is the sound of breaking glass and crockery at the end of the song. Great sound, but anyone know why she chose that particular song for the sound she loved so much?

I'm betting Marvin wondered 'What's Going On?' :P

Sorry, that was a bit crap.

LOL. I actually think Carole G posted this bit on another thread....but it's worth reading twice.

I'll ask, as I think I did there, does anyone know any particulars about the crockery, the style of throwing it, etc.

It is supposed to be a feature at the Dusty presentation I'm doing in a few weeks.....so please post and share all Dusty crockery stories and quotes here!

Thanks!
