On 14th May 1973 Dusty guested on a cookery show with Dinah. I wondered if anyone had seen or has this. I would love to see it. I also thought we could dicuss it Here's a little recipe with some photos.

Admin Note: This image has been removed pending permission from Paul Howes of the Dusty Springfield Bulletin.

Yes I remember seeing that in an old Bulletin - not seen any footage though. My sister had a hairstyle like that in '73!

Yes, I'm sure that show is languishing in some LA archive!....it would nice for the whole episode to resurface, they do show clips of Dinah's show from time to time when people are being reminisced about on Biography channel type programmes, such as Julie London's very last TV appearance, etc;

Maybe NBC could be contacted and that specific episode loaned to a technically minded Dusty fan who could make it availabe to all of us through a copy?

I think someone should do that! I contacted Paul Howes and he said it still exists.

Enchiladas verdes sounds delicious. Anyone prepared to try the recipe? Kathy? 😊

Yeah, I'll have a go, but I have to tell you Mexican cooking is not my thing. Mary, I need your help here. 😊 I have no idea what cilantro (2 teaspoons) is, or for that matter tomatillos. Do you get tomatillos in a tin, buy them fresh? We have fairly limited exotic foodstuffs in Nowra as it is a staid country area! 😊 It might have to wait until I hit the city again. (Not long though, going back on Thursday).

I know Pam will love it as it combines her two favourite things, the colour green and chillies! How can it miss? It won't even need a crust over it! 🍌

Cor, you would have to adapt this recipe somewhat. Perhaps you could substitute pickled herring for the chicken! 🍌🍌🍌

She looks unusually sassy in those pics. My mom had essentially the same hair when she was preggers with me.

Maybe ??? It was 1974.... so.....maybe.

this recipe is right up my alley. But I need the print enlarged.

Aw, Michael, you look so cute in that pic. 😊

Nancy, if you save the photo then zoom in it should be clear enough to read. If not then let me know and I'll type it all out.

mhhh, I love Mexican food 🌮...the only Mex food we make in our household is tacos..i used to make enchiladas but only get them out, now. Kathy, Cilantro is the leaves of the coriander plant..In this neck of the woods coriander is sold as a dried herb while the cilantro is used fresh (not sure if I have ever seen dried cilantro).looks like parsley (fresh)...usually have to taste or smell to tell the difference but cilantro is very distinct compared to more bland parsley. Fresh cilantro is a main ingredient in Mexican and Asian(Thai) dishes and we use it a LOT in my house..in beans dishes, salads ect. It is an aquired taste as I know many folks who do not like it..kind of has a metal taste..but for me salsa is not salsa w/o the cilantro! 😊

Didn't Dusty appear on the Dinah Shore show and they did a duet as well in the mid seventies when she was keeping a very low profile. I thought I had read that somewhere.

Oh, I might have to turn this recipe over to Nancy to cook then. There is practically nothing in the way of food I do not like or at least tolerate, but coriander makes me feel quite sick, I cannot stand the taste of it. 🤢 My mantra when in a Thai restaurant is "No coriander". You are right Paula, some people taste coriander quite differently than others you either love it or hate it. I'm in the latter group. Over to you Nancy!

Oh my! Corriander as in cilantro? One of the most divine flavors on earth, along with lime.

Lime I love, I have a lime tree in my garden bearing fruit right now. 🍋 But I am one of the unfortunate ones for whom the taste of coriander makes them feel physically ill. Most people tell me that it has a lovely fresh taste, I cannot describe the revulsion I feel on tasting it. I must be among the ones who have the alternate set of taste buds 🤢

Dusty appeared on The Dinah Shore Show in 1975 and sang Groovin' with Dinah, plus Since I Fell For You solo. This is as well as duetting with Dinah on I Am Woman on Dinah's Place. She made one more appearance in 1978 singing Sandra and I Found Love With You. I just used the new Complete DS for the first time!

Matt, if you want to re-post the enchilada's recipe on the first page, that's ok. It was my idea to remove it as I don't think we should use stuff, articles or pictures, from the Bulletin without permission. Paul works hard on research and pays a lot of money for the photos, which he recoups from selling the Bulletin. If these things appear free of charge on our site, then it could stop people buying the Bulletin, which could in turn, then die. Same goes really for copying anything from any other Dusty site on the internet.
