From today's "Glasgow Herald".

Don't Miss "Donald Does Dusty", Tron Theatre, Glasgow, tonight at 7:30pm.

When Diane Torr first unveiled her tribute to her brother at the the CCA for GlasGay! in 2006, it was less a work-in-progress than not-really Donald went to London, where he was an actor, dancer and antiques dealer before he contracted AIDS and died in 1992. Impersonating blu

Sister Diane learned her performance-art craft in new York City, her 'Drag Kings and Subjects' played the Arches five years ago, and she y performance extravaganza in Tramway way back in 1998.

Having garnered good notices over in the US, 'Donald Does Dusty' should be a more honed show for its' return run (to Saturday).

Thanks to Heather and Moira for the tip-off.

Just a pity the reviewer got Dusty's eye colour wrong!!

I'd have loved to have attended this to see what it was like, although it wasn't really a show 'about' Dusty, but rather, a show about a ma meetings all night and there was no way I could have gone. But if I hear any reviews, will post them here.

Heather phoned in the morning but I was on house calls at the time. When I finally got to speak to her and she told me about it, I had to s Mac group AGM, then regular meeting, then committee meeting, none of which I could get out of. Be that as it may, I did find this review o

Will, I don't think the reviewer got her eye-color wrong. "Blue-eyed soul" is a term referring to anyone white singing with soul, as Our Dusty

Hi Taylor -

Yes I know that, but the lack of inverted commas left it open to interpretation.. 'blue-eyed soul' diva would have made it clearer.
If I get the chance, may try to see the show on Saturday evening. If I do, I'll review it here - and plug the forum whilst I'm at the Tron ;)
