"Dusty Heard Them Here First" compilation (#p138683)

by Earthbound Gypsy » Sat Nov 16, 2013 9:33 pm

This looks pretty cool (and amazingly manages to avoid duplicating anything from A Love Like Yours: The Original Versions Of The Songs That Inspired Dusty Springfield). It's listed as "coming soon" but I can't find a release date.

My copy arrived today.

Has anyone else noticed the name of one of Dusty's LPs shown on the cover photograph, ie Music To Strip By?

Didn't Dusty once mention in something like Lifelines in the NME that one of her favourite records was The Stripper by David Rose?

This album 'Music to strip by', by 'Bald' Bill Hagan & His Trocaderons was issued in 1966 on the Somerset label (US)...not sure if this is the one Dusty had?

This review of the CD appears in the March edition of Record Collector Dusty Springfield was the UK's very own Queen of Soul, releasing a string of impeccable originals that steeped in R&B and Brill Building styled orchestrated pop, balanced girl group effusion with uptown soul and sophisticated torch balladry, she was also a fine interpreter of soul's songbook.

'Dusty Heard Them Here First ' collects the songs that inspired her. From the Motown catalogue, arguably her favourite source , we get The Velvelettes Needle In A Haystack, Marvin Gaye's Can I Get A Witness, The Miracles You've Really Got A Hold On Me, and Gladys Knight & The Pips Ain't No Sun Since You've Been Gone.

This superb compilation also contains more unusual fare from KT Oslin, Chi Coltrane and Carla Thomas.

There is also an interesting article on French Motown EP's, apparently 73 were issued and the article gives a full track listing.
