Dusty Songs that make you cry (#p164073)

by DustysGirl » Sun Dec 21, 2014 6:50 pm

Dusty has the power to bring out a lot of different emotions. One of her numerous gifts.

Are there any songs that she sang that just brought up a lot of emotions in you (almost or to the point of tearing up) or songs that you just find sad in general?

The ones that do it for me are:

Yesterday When I was Young

Sandra

I Wanna be a Free Girl

Quiet Please (There's a Lady on Stage)

Who Can I Turn To?

Those are a few of the ones that just reach in my chest, grab my soul, tear it apart and then shove it back in again (in the best way possible 😊)

What does it for you?

xx

"Going Back" does it for me. It will always make me teary eyed.

Quite a few of Dustys songs do depending on my mood, from Goin' Back and Its Over to I'm coming Home again, All I see is you to I close My Eyes and Count to Ten. Most of these songs evoke happy or sad memories for me.

Too many to go through ,as Cas says it depends on the mood, the moment and the memories but apart from the obvious ones we all react to then for today i would say something in your eyes. 🥰

In The Winter for me is such a sad Song, In fact thinking about it, the majority of Longing is... I wouldn't say completely bleak or downbeat but the only really uplifting song for me on this 'Album' is A Love Like Yours, Maybe I Am Your Child and Angels too. Doesn't mean it's not a classic that should have sold millions of copies if it had been given a 1974 release in my eyes though. 🙄

Of course Goin' Back makes me well up too. 🍀

A lot of the songs already mentioned plus 'That's how heartaches are made'. Probably 'Goin'back' is one of those songs that will bring a tear to my eyes. Living in Australia I sometimes feel the need to go back to when I was a teenager living in the UK in the 60s living in very much the Dusty era.

My girlfriend left me two weeks ago (I had a tough time, but now I feel better, don't be sad for me) and now I can hear some Dusty's songs from a different angle, without necessarily crying. I'm thinking of "Losing You", "All I See is You", among others.

Any Other Fool.

Everytime. I can't listen to it without crying. I've tried. 🙄

At one time or another the following have made me cry:

Goin' Back
I Don't Wanna Hear it Anymore
Just One Smile
Just a Little Lovin'
Home to Myself
I'm Coming Home Again
But It's a Nice Dream

I'm sure there are more.

@Samuel- glad to hear you are doing better. 😊

Break-ups are never a happy experience, but music usually helps to soften the blow.
...and Dusty has plenty of songs that are perfect for it. 🎵 🙌

'Why Am I Chained To A Memory' so beautiful and moving. 🙌

The song that made me blub was Go My Love/Goodbye, and oh my goodness did it, I used to crumple in a heap everytime I heard it, I don't recall now when I did first hear it and am okay with it now, just, but yes, this is the one that devastated me. Some of Dusty's other songs stopped me in my tracks and sent shivers down me back but that one tops it for me.

Hi Lucy, My CD is Love Songs - Rhino 2001, says on sleeve notes first appeared on box set The Legend of Dusty Springfield - Mercury - 1994. Its the very last song on this CD.

Also I think it is now on YouTube, don't forget your tissues.

Lucy, there is one on Ebay, six British Pounds, as new, its the one with limey green roses background, so there is no confusion, because there are other CDs with same title.

Good Luck if you decide to go for it. No bidding, can buy outright.

Thanks for the info Jennifer, and Pat for the YouTube clip. Yes. I did grab my tissues it's such a lovely song. Never heard it before but, then there are probably a lot I haven't heard over the past years as I've been a bit of a lapsed fan. Pleases to say that I'm getting re-aquainted with our Dusty. There is so much information on the LTD site and it's been great to catch up with what happened in Dustys life, good and not so good!!.

Thanks once again.

I know this might be slightly off topic but, sometime ago I thought I saw a video clip of Dusty singing 'Goin'back 'in what looked like a beach and cliff background. Was I dreaming this or is there such a video??. I've tried to find it in on YouTube but, to no avail.

Maybe I was imagining it!!!

At the top of my list would be No Easy Way Down from DIM. The lyrics, arrangement, and of course her voice get me whenever I hear it. I would also add these:

If You Go Away

Goin' Back

It's Over

Who Will Take My Place

You've Got A Friend

Was this the one Lucy? The person who 'made' the video added the images of Dusty to the Studio song.

Thanks for that Darren. I think it could be the one although I never realised that it was in Sydney. It's a lovely video of her looking like she was relaxed. I wonder who the 3 people sitting on the ground were?? And coming down those stairs looking very wary of them especially with her nearsightedness!!

I can't get this on our YouTube here so I'll just have to bookmark it so I can come back and look at it again..... I'm only glad I hadn't imagined it, though where I first saw it I couldn't tell you..

Thanks again

Lucy

PS Would you know when Dusty came out to Australia?

The first time I heard/saw Dusty sing, "A House is Not A Home". 🏠 Also, "Yesterday When I Was Young", because it came at the end of a biography and it was the finality of it. I've found ways to defend myself now, but it's always touch and go. 😊

No problems Lucy. 🤔

Lucy wrote:

According to Paul Howes The Complete Dusty Springfield, Dusty went out to Sydney for three weeks in October 1967 (5 -25) where the lovely Cine-Film from that Goin' Back vid was taken, and also where she appeared on Brian Henderson's Bandstand. A year and a half later Dusty appeared in Cabaret also in Sydney from March 28- April 19th in 1969, flying out from England on March 19th. 😊

Even more so Lucy, I just remembered Dusty also toured Australia and New Zealand back in 1964, Consulted Paul Howes book and she flew out on March 30th 1964, for a 12-day-tour starting out in Perth. I think that's all her Australian experiences as a solo artist at least 🤔 but not sure if she toured there with The Springfields? Can't find any record of it, but they were very popular there. 😊

Hi Darren

The 'bible' sure is a handy tool to have. You seem to be quite a dedicated fan and there's a few questions I have on a couple of things maybe I wonder if it would be better if I correspond with you either PM or email rather than me hog the thread.. Just let me know...

Lucy if you look at the threads and archives you are interested in you only have to put a search in on the appropriate threads on here and all the info on Dusty is probably already included on the site.

Lots of the threads that were active are no longer on the first pages so just put a link in the top of the appropriate page and different mentions will pop up. For instance if you wanted to see Dusty day archives, they are all there with clips of pics and singing etc.

Its all there for you to discover and enjoy.hope this helps. 😊

Hi Liz

Thank you for that info. Yes I'm slowly going though the different threads. There is so much reading material that I'm glad to be retired now and have more time to browse.ive got a lot of catching up to do as I've been a bit out of touch with Dustys life.

Really like the LTD site. Very different today to just be able to pop online and find out so many things as compared to the very early fan club days where everything was snail mail.....

Finding lots more of Dustys songs that I never knew about. It's great.

Yes Lucy, you will be well occupied with the backlog of info and chat from the years this fab site has been running.

hope you realised what i meant. Just look at the " search the topic " space at the top of a thread and type a link name you are interested in and all the posts mentioning your enquiry should come up for you to choose from. Then you can add a point etc and reopen that chat etc.

must be good to find Dusty again.. 😊

I had a vinyl Dusty morning yesterday as the weather was horrible and i played the last album, my second favourite after " a girl called Dusty " 😊

I listened with headphones on, really heard such wonderful pathos and emotion in those tracks.

so sad to hear the frail but still wonderfully expressive tone to her voice. 🙄 a very moving listen .

I replayed " go easy on me " several times, really beautiful.

she was a gem. 🍷

It is a great album Liz 🙄 and I get something new from it every time I play it. 🍷

It's weird, but my favourite ever Dusty song and (I think) reputedly the only song that Dusty sang that made her cry I've Been Wrong Before makes me emotional but never reduces me to tears. 😊
Perhaps that's the reason Dusty never ever sang it live? 🙄

Hi Liz and Darren

Both those songs are on my favs list. The first time I heard 'I've been wrong before' was on the 'Everything coming up Diusty' album and I fell in love with it. (I would have been all of about 15 or so). Quite a moving song and never realised she hadn't ever performed it live...

Like you Liz I put my headphones on and you hear every word so clearly. I even take her on the treadmill with me. It seems to give me encouragement to keep going...

She had such emotion in her singing and I wonder how many of her great songs were reflective of her how she felt at times, in her personal life such as 'Where am I going'. I guess we'll never really know.....
