Dusty with French and Saunders (#p117162)

by donellac » Thu Apr 04, 2013 12:01 pm

I keep hearing about Dusty going on the French and Saunders show and putting on her wig and full makeup.

I would love to see this show/sketch. Can anyone tell me where I can get a copy of the show?

Have searched and searched on YouTube, to no avail! 😞 🙄

I don't mean Full Circle, I already have a copy of that! 😊

I would also love to see the talking bit between Dusty and Jools Holland from the Later show where she sang 'Where is a Woman to Go?'. Does anyone have a copy of that?

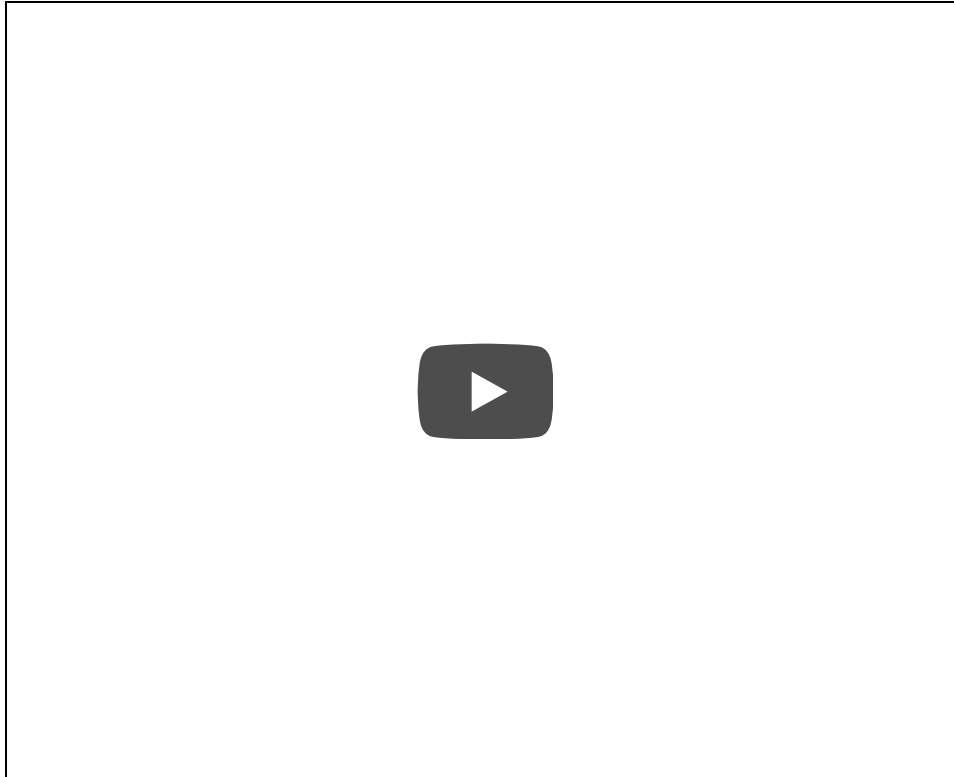

I would be really grateful to get to see these clips. 🙏 🙏

Interesting to see Dusty's reaction to her 60s self here - 'Oh that hair!' etc. Do people think that was her being self deprecating or did she really mean it ??

Frans, you have done it again!

Not sure how you do! 🤔

I have searched and searched for that clip. 🤔

You just seem to know where to find all these great and unusual clips. 😊 😊

Thanks again for posting this. You have my undying gratitude. 🙌🙌🙌🙌

Jackie, I think she probably did mean it.

What would you say if you were shown yourself from thirty years ago? 😊 😊

😄 You the man Frans ! 🙌🙌

😄 Loved every minute of it.

😄 Those were new to me also.

I heard Dusty mention Lamb Chop. 🙌 Did she ever appear on the Shari Lewis show ? My search did not find such an episode, but I don't doubt Dusty's amusement with that darling puppet.

I think Shari Lewis was on one of the UK Dusty shows, which is probably one of those destroyed.

Shari was the best ventriloquist I have ever seen and I'm sure Dusty appreciated her perfection.

I can remember watching her with my dad and he wasn't convinced that she was doing the voices.

FANTASTIC! Thanks for posting the video Fran's. I used to love Lambchop too. My 11 year old Shi-Tzu is named Lambchop.

I looked a lot better than I do now Donella 😊

Interesting that Dusty feels like that but her fans mostly feel the opposite. An observation on fandom? ?

Well, I think, and I didn't hear it clearly at first, but Dusty said 'Oh that hair, I want it'. So maybe she didn't hate the sight of herself so much. ?

I definitely would have to say that I looked better 30 years ago than I do now. But I also know I have made the odd fashion faux pas. Even though I thought I looked 'super cool' at the time. There are photos that make me cringe and say 'what was I thinking?!' 😞😞
What about you? 😊

Who knows what Dusty was thinking during the interview with Jools. I believe that she was often presented with her 60s self and found it hard. I think she felt that she couldn't escape from the 'Dusty Springfield' she had created back then. 🤔

For me its the music,the voice all the way. 🎵 🎵

That's interesting Donella I'll listen to it again - I'm due for my daily fix.. I was a total fright in the 1960s and now wish I'D thought of wearing a beehive wig and trowelled on make-up. 😊

Things improved in the 1970s that was my best decade (except for the monstrous platform shoes) and it's been downhill ever since 😞

You're quite right though she probably, like a lot of us, looked back at herself then and wanted to put that 60s self behind her. I still found it quite weird though hearing Dusty say that and make shooting gestures at herself as if she wanted to kill that past image when I've spent a lot of time mesmerised by her and that very image.

I have to say though it's the older Dusty that particularly does it for me 🤔

If Dusty had ever gone into the business of reading audio books, she would have made a fortune. I could listen to her speaking voice for days, and days, and days.....

Yes and it's not just the wonderful husky voice it's that interesting accent that's an amalgam of middle-class English, American and Irish, at least that's how it sounds to me. I agree I could listen to her forever

What American accent? I only heard the "y'all come back real soon- hear?" bit (which was good btw) 😊

I don't hear no steenkin' American accent! 🤪 🤪 🤪
