I'm sure that we all have our own favourite lyrics which are contained in Dustys songs.

But, I'm wonderin' which line of lyrics appeal to you?

Maybe three sets to start with, folks? 😊

Ever since we met you've had a hold on me
It's crazy but it's true, I only want to be with you!

Just a little lovin' early in the morning
Beats a cup of coffee for startin off the day

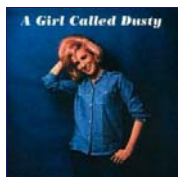

Now to you it might seem a little thing
But to me it seemed you'd changed my winter to spring

Let everyone debate the true reality
I'd rather see the world the way it used to be
A little bit of freedom's
All we lack
So catch me if you can
I'm goin' back

The entirety of this song - and this final verse, in particular - have the power to instantly make me feel a sense of longing, nostalgia and almost a sense of melancholy, to which I am not normally prone. It's a deep and quite sad song and the moment I hear those piano chords at the start, a shiver goes down my spine.

And it's also hauntingly beautiful.

I needed a little help with this one as well. 😞

Oh, how to narrow this down! I love Norma Tanega's lyrics, even the ones that don't make a great amount of sense. I especially adore Go My Love, which is just heart-rending from first line to last.

I share your thoughts on Goin' Back, Will; I also think My Colouring Book is a beauty lyrically. It's a very simple but effective idea that just becomes devastating when Dusty sings it.

I love Randy Newman's lyrics as well, especially those in I Don't Want To Hear It Anymore, because of the way they tell a story.

On a lighter note, I think 'being good isn't always easy/no matter how hard I try' is just a great line, and I love all of Breakfast In Bed for the way the gentle coercion in the first verse becomes really quite insistent by the second. 😊

I will never cry again"

everything around me is faded and grey"

"you're all that I adore, but I've been wrong before"

"but where you are is the only place I wanna be"

"but no one's to blame but myself"

"the wasted years, each year a knife"

"look back from the stars, you'll see we are dust"

"you wanna transcend it, in order to end it, but your loneliness grows"

"bits and pieces of your past chill your soul like winter rain"

"will she let you stay in bed,
rub your head,
take the pain away"

"walk along in silence trying not to think at all,

I put my feet before me walk this silent street before me,
it's over"

"darkness comes,
flowers grow,
no one knows,
I start counting"

"I can't help the way that I don't feel, take what isn't there and make it real"

"and I feel so helpless,
and it ain't funny,
cos deep down inside I know
you're never gonna love me"

Memphis, the song is 'My Lagan Love' - although, if I am not mistaken, when Dusty sang it, she did the first two verses but not that final one.

The song featured on CD1 of the 2CD boxset, "Good Times" - a DSB charity release dating from 2001. On checking 'The Complete Dusty Springfield', it is noted in the track listing for 'Good Times', but I can find no other information about it. Dusty sang the song on her tv show on 19 September 1967, accompanied by a harpist. It really is quite lovely and not at all the kind of thing you would expect Dusty to be singing.

You can see Dusty singing it here -
<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=MBemjBqtUy4>

Kate Bush also recorded the song, oddly enough, including it both as the B side to one of her singles, and in her 'This Womans Work' anthology box set.

These are the full lyrics, but note there are two slightly differing versions doing the rounds..

When rainy nights are soft with tears
And Autumn leaves are falling
I hear his voice on tumbling waves
And no one there to hold me
At evening's fall he watched me walk
His heart was mine
But my love was young and felt
The world was not cruel but kind

Where Lagan's light fell on the hour
I saw him far below me
Just as the morning calmed the storm
With no one there to hold him

My loves have come, my love's have gone
And nothing left to warm me
Save for a voice on the travelling wind
And the glimpse of a face at morning

I really enjoy reading all these favourite lyrics... and working out the songs they are taken from.

Are Dusty song lyrics more meaningful than others?

Or, do we just give them much more attention?...

I know that I could produce many more...and I'm sure that you could too. 😊

Feel free... 😊

My first three:

"Ain't it sad, said a woman down the hall,
That when I nice girl falls in love,
Ain't it just too bad that she had to fall,
For a boy who doesn't care for her at all."
(Argh! Just heartbreaking!)

"You've been crying, your face is a mess,
Come in baby, you can wipe the tears on my dress."

"It's over... We can all go home."

"Are Dusty song lyrics more meaningful than others?"

Or, do we just give them much more attention?...

It's all in the delivery with our Dust. Sometimes the lyrics don't mean much at all (this is particularly the case with some of the lines from From Dusty with Love), but the phrasing, the emphasis... just make them unmistakably Dusty.
