The rapport between them is so witty and hysterical...do you suppose that any of it was rehearsed? Isn't that sometimes typical on these "spontaneous" shows? On the other hand, it all sounds so natural.

Also, does anyone know of any comments Dusty made about Edna Everidge before or after that show? Was she a fan?

And, has anyone seen the whole show? What does one observe/learn about Dusty when she's not being interviewed or performing?

Well it's all right to go on and live your life, so come out into the light....

I bet she was a fan - she loved Danny La Rue after all. I don't know about anyone else but I think they had a lot in common, Dusty's drag was just more subtle. Not saying she was a man of course - ha ha ha.

Dusty seemd to be hiding less of herself later on.....but it could just be wishful thinking.

Those pics are worth a thousand words--thanks, Sophie.

She does look to be mightily enjoying herself.

Many thanks Sophie! I loved seeing this show, It seemed to be one of Dusty's higher moments where she looked genuinely happy and comfortable...

I have the whole show but haven't watched it for a while. She did look incredibly pretty and happy and I was told by someone who was at the recording that when Dusty and Dame Edna sang 'Sisters', they weren't happy with it first time and so did a re-run. Apparently, she did it completely differently the second time and as we know, that was fabulous.

And we know how hard it was to make Dusty happy, so that's saying something!

I wonder if she wasn't vamping it up as much the first time? Any details there, CG?

I don't know about "vamping it up" Nancy, I was just told that for some reason they chose to redo the song even though there hadn't seemed to be anything wrong, maybe it was technical. But then the second time she did it, she altered the words and phrasing and it just all sounded so completely natural and spontaneous. The show must have been rehearsed though as I believe there was a script and it was written by David Mitchell, one of the Oz writers of Dusty the Musical.

Its weird how there was a script - it all seemed so natural, laughing etc..

I love how Dusty goes 'I had nightmares about those stairs last night', because just before she walked down I was like eeeek dont trip!!!

This show is so good, and Dusty looks a million dollars, as per usual OF COURSE!

Have you seen the Kenny Everett show then, Mads? Where she actually fell down the stairs (and took the decoration down with her)? Though it must have been on purpose cause everybody's laughing (including Simon!).

Dusty did!?!?!? 🤪🤪🤪🤪🤪

Although wouldnt Simon laugh because generally (if they dont hurt themselves) when people fall down the stairs it is funny?

OMG I cant believe Dusty fell down the stairs!! Was she ok?! 🤪🤪

Do you think for the Dame Edna show, that it could have been just Dame Edna's lines that were scripted?

I guess they wouldn't have laughed if it had been an accident. So I bet Dusty was ok. 😊

I'll check out YouTube and see if I can put it up there, haven't done that before, but I'll try.

Several Dame Edna shows are out on DVD and this is one of them. Can probably get on Amazon.
