SOAPM - being played by the shy retiring Terry Wogan right now 🎵
Terry plays a lot of Dusty - bet Chris Evans doesn't?

Brian

Surprised but pleased to see Dusty included on this Stax collection
-it's her Private Number duet with Spencer Davis

Thanks for the Observer heads up Rosie, I missed it, being away, but just found it online

I bought all those musics mags in the 60's, it was a passion along with Dusty's music. I have that complete NME with Dusty on the cover in it's original state.

I watched two episodes of 'the L word' recently on DVD in which Dusty sang in the background 1) Just a Little Lovin' and 2) 'Little By Little'. It was a lovely surprise.

A Dusty "plague" in Ealing! Goof aside, I wonder where he wanted it to be placed?

Priceless! If it starts raining sardines and bread buns in Ealing, we'll know it's truly divine intervention.

Apparently he was suggesting a plaque in Kent Gardens where Dusty lived but as the house is no longer there, I'm not sure what they would have stuck it on to!

This is a pretty old article..Apologies if you have seen it before.

I think its worth a look.

From Dusty Rides Again by Rob Hoerburger:

In June, three days after A Very Fine Love was released, there was a party for Springfield at the Sony Club, an oak-paneled hideaway at the top of the Manhattan skyline. Sprinkled among the junior executives, most of whom knew "the name, but not the face, or any of the songs", were some die-hard Springfield fans--journalists, disk jockeys, and other assorted music-biz hangers-on--waiting for the cometlike appearance of their muse, toting their copies of Dusty in Memphis, which was finally reissued on CD in 1992, for her to sign. It was a fairly low-wattage crowd until Paul Shaffer, the elfin leader of the band on Late Show With David Letterman arrived in his double-breasted best, having rushed over after that evening's taping.

Springfield had tried to get on Letterman, which would surely have registered some numbers for the album, but even the clout of Columbia couldn't secure a spot. Shaffer, a fan, appeared seemingly as a consolation prize, and after meeting Springfield he wandered over to the grand piano in the corner. As any Letterman watcher knows, he has an encyclopedia of 1960s pop in his fingertips, and yet his selection was still astonishing: Some of Your Lovin', an obscure Carole King-Gerry Goffin song that was a 1965 hit for Springfield in England and that just happens to be the only one of her recordings with which she can find no fault. As Shaffer plunked out the chords, Springfield was caught in the moment, and soon her lambent tones were encircling the crowd like a giant embrace.

After about 40 seconds, when she realized that no one was talking anymore, she suddenly stopped, claiming she couldn't remember the rest of the song but really wilting, one more time, from the attention. The neophytes egged her on for more, but the true Dusty Springfield fans knew better. They looked content, relieved, enthralled simply to be, however fleetingly, still within the sound of her voice.

It's actually the end part of a longer 1995 New York Times article by Rob Hoerburger. I love the way he writes about Dusty, he's such an obvious fan. You can find the full article on Woman of Repute.

Don't remember hearing about this production last year

DUSTY SPRINGFIELD... WITH YOU
September 17 - October 11
(Press Previews September 17&18; Opens September 19 for CURTAIN UP! 2008)

STARRING LORRAINE O'DONNELL
Devised and directed by RICHARD LAMBERT

Buffalo's favorite Lorraine O'Donnell stars as the Queen of Blue-Eyed Soul in the 90 minute, re-imagined version of the singer's iconic life, told through the music that made her famous.
A must see-event!

A couple of passing mentions of Dusty on Anthony Reynolds Scott Walker site, including the one below which I found interesting

"Johnny Franz was totally in charge. And what Johnny said went. With all his artists. It was Dusty Springfield and Scott that changed that with Johnny but they were the only two that ever did get away with disputing whatever Johnny Franz's decisions were."

This was a rare evolutionary step within the world of popular music. Not only did people like Scott and Dusty have what it took in the 'Star' stakes, but they were also diligent, articulate, and professional conceptualists. Each could have made it either side of the recording console either as just a singer or a producer.

Thanks Clive for that nugget. I've been thinking that there are similarities between Scott and Dusty and this is the first time I've been able to read anything about both of them and their links in one article.

I wonder did they ever consider recording together in the studio seeing as they shared a record label and producer. Also since Dusty said she liked 'left field' things musically there would have been common ground I'm sure. I do remember seeing a newspaper or music paper article where Dusty said she would like to tour with Scott.
