Dusty's 'other' number one single (#p85929)

by Brian » Sun Jan 22, 2012 8:59 pm

I've been checking the pirate ship 'BIG L - Radio London, and their top 40 chart throughout the period they were on the air.....and Dusty had a 'number one' record in 1967 !!

"I'll try anything" made the top spot w/e 18th March of that year 🤪

The pirate stations always had their own charts - and often were way ahead of the national chart, but this record only managed number 13 nationally !

The chart makes interesting reading.

Love this song! Though I do wonder what the original mix sounded like, before Dusty changed the track from the original alleged "hotter and tighter" mix...

One of my favourite tracks, and certainly worth a No. 1 spot!

It even says "Dusty's No. 1 in England" in this ad! 🤖 Wonder which chart they were refering to?

When "What's It Gonna Be" was re-released in 1974 it hit the top of the charts on Manchester's Piccadilly Radio. I have no documented evidence for this, just a memory of being highly thrilled 🤖

"What's It Gonna Be" is one of my favourite Dusty songs 🎵 (I have many favourites though... 😊)
Glad to know that it hit the top of the charts on Manchester's Piccadilly Radio 1974 😊
