Dusty's house at frogmill hurley

by Cecelia » Mon Nov 04, 2013 11:50 pm

Calling all dusty people-found a link for Dusty's place in frogmill Hurley. I know at one time there was question about which place was hers. Is that still the case? Anyway, have a look see. I posted this somewhere else, so you may see it twice. Still learning--- www.rightmove.co.uk/property-for-sale/p ...98467.html

Cecilia if you put "frogmill" into the search box, top right, you will find lots of info and discussion. I'd rather see the world the way it used to be.....

Hi Pat-well I guess that's why I'm the new kid on the block. I am still learning what to do. Thanks, now I know how to search the archives. Cecelia according to this thread, it is one of the three houses listed in the agent's picture--but Carole G wasn't sure which one it was. You can see Dusty standing in the area in front of the houses in the picture posted on the above thread.

Its further around to the right from the picture where Dusty is standing.

I have a picture of the front part but cannot access it at the moment.

The back area has obviously got the Granary plaque on the wall outside.

Should have read the whole thread--that I posted
So, the third house (on R), the Granary, is the one Dusty lived in.
Which is not the one posted in the real estate advert.

Still, it's nice to have a view of the interior of the house beside the one Dusty lived in.
