Does anyone know what happened to Dusty's mum and dad? Any pictures? Because I always wondered about them.

Matt.

Thanks for the picture! I've seen that but I couldn't remember where so I couldn't save it. Now I can!

There's also a nice one of them with Dusty outside an airplane.

I think Dusty's Mum died in 1976 and her Dad in 1979.

You're welcome Matt.

Incidentally in a radio interview in 1985 Dusty mentioned that her mother was from a family of 13 and that she (Dusty) still had some uncles living in Ireland. I've no idea if they are alive now but I am sure Dusty must have many cousins.

Everyone thinks of the Irish side of the family as the O'Brien's but it was her mother that was Irish. Am I right--or was Dusty's dad as well? I think he grew up in India, didn't he?

Yes her mother was from Tralee- her surname was Ryle.

I suppose Dusty's dad must have had some Irish ancestry with the name O'Brien ,but I believe he was born in Scotland.

I've read several biographies but I'm too lazy to get up and look this up!
(Actually I'm working on a paper--but I'm still lazy.)

I think we had this conversation sometime in the past and I asked Pat about Dusty's living relatives. She said she only had cousins now.

As promised, Dusty's Mum's autograph.....Bab's can't quite remember what appearance it was from, but we think it would have been from the '66 poll-winners Party (where Dusty sang YDHTSYLM live, with Kiki and Madeline on backing), and Catherine would have accompanied her famous daughter....

What is the story behind this Mark? (Or will you get Babs to sign up and tell us?)

Dusty looks so pretty in that pic with her Dad.

Thanks for posting both.

I've heard in some of her latest interviews, that her mother showed her the affection she should, few minutes before passing away....she led her hand in her cheek and Dusty wondered "Couldn't you be more when I was a kid?"....she loved her mum the most!!!!I've also heard that her folks did hit her a lot and that made me so sad....but also explains lots in her life....Anyway.....

"She looked like one of those horror masks, all sunken. her eyes were glassy from the drugs, but sudaenly she reached up this claw and tweaked my nose. I don't remember her ever doing that to me before. And then, sudaenly she passed out again. The next day I had to return to the States but I calaed and said 'How is Mrs O'Brien?' And they said, 'Oh, she passed away.' It was such a shock because it was so matter-of-fact. So the tweak was important. And it was horrific too. I did come unglued then. I handed it very badly. Partly guilt. I wasn't there . . ."

Hahahahah...it was the nose 😊 I knew I'd read it somewhere...

I can honestly say that I've never read, or heard Dusty say that her folks hit her. Ever.

Mads I agree with you on both counts!

Maybe something got lost in the translation GioGeo?

I do recall Dusty mentioning in an interview that when she was a child her dad used to beat out the rhythms of songs on her hand very hard, but when she mentioned this to him in later life he had no recollection of it. I will try and find her exact quote if I can remember where I saw it.
