Well! Sorry All, 🙄 as it turned out not even a glimpse of Dusty 😞 Some good clips and recollections though. 😊

Wouldn't count on it, with my track record 🙄 But I think every Saturday, starting this 16th November at 7PM, TCM are showing full Classic shows from the Ed Sullivan archives. Maybe, just maybe, in the future there's one that features Dusty on the Horizon. 🙏 🙏

No Worries Pat, hope you can catch it. 🙏 Dusty just sang Son Of A Preacher Man, Also a very brief 'interview' with Ed where Dusty confirms her name as Mary Isabel Catherine Bernadette O'Brien. 🙏 Dusty also remonstrates with Ed for calling her an Irishman. 😊 Also includes performances from Diana Ross & The Supremes (X2), Janis Joplin (X2) and Gladys Knight.

This thread reminded me about a CD that was issued in the States in 1990.

Members of my vintage may be aware of it, but younger members may not. A company called 1001 Sundays Inc issued a series of CDs which consisted of live music performances from The Ed Sullivan Show. The one I bought was titled The Sullivan Years - The Mod Sound. It had Sullivan's short interview with Dusty which followed her performance of SOAPM. I am pretty sure I got the CD through DSB.

If this has not been posted on LTD and people want to hear it, I would be happy to make an MP3 file of it and e-mail it to anyone who knows how to get it on to the LTD site. I have just taken the precaution of playing the CD to check it is still in full working order, which it is. It's a very creditable live performance of SOAPM.

Sullivan comes across in the links as really quite of touch with the world of popular music. He introduces The Seekers and Georgy Girl as 'something for the youngsters', while the youngsters would probably have regarded their repertoire as mum-and-dad music. Imagine a more awkward version of Eamonn Andrews, if you are old enough to know who Andrews was.
