This looks a lot better on my wall actually. The light is very bad this week, and that's the best I could do.

Wendy

I think you are right Wendy it does. Dusty is very hard to capture...I know from trying, If I get the eyes then the lips aren't right, etc. You do very well Wendy, well done.

Thanks Will, her hair is usually quite difficult because I like to put in every strand, but on this original photo there are no strands to see, it's all a bit of a blur, so I did have to try and improvise a bit.

Wendy, I hope you won't mind but I popped your image through Photoshop just to adjust the lighting and I have to say that its a stunning image. I don't know how to let you have a peek at what I did. I didn't change anything other than the lighting of course.

Wendy, go take a look at this page -

<http://web.mac.com/digitographer/Digitographer/wendy.html>

and see what I did. I hope you don't mind! The page is a private one and there is no link to it anywhere except here.

Let me know what you think.

And I second the suggestion made already - you should do something with these images, because they really are astonishing.

OMG Will - that looks terrific. Feel free to do whatever you want, and thanks. I luv them. I luv your work anyway. I'm no good at taking the photo and messing around with it, I don't have the patience for that part of it. I always find I make things worse when I try to improve.

And I'm glad you didn't mind what I had done. Those images really deserve to be showcased somewhere. They are just so lovely. I love each of the ones on that page, but each for a different reason. Such lovely, lovely images.

A lovely portrait of Dusty, Wendy. Your talent for drawing faces (particularly Dusty) is amazing. 😊

Will, Wendy and I have talked briefly about the possibility of turning some of Wendy's drawings into a calendar for sale with proceeds to charity. The main problem to date has been in trying to get a good image to reproduce them from. It looks as though you could help with this. 😊

Thanks Will, your help will be much appreciated. I'll see Tom at DD and will talk to him about this and get back to you, but the images you produced there seem excellent to me. After talking with Tom, perhaps Wendy can pick out a few more to make up 12 (or 13) if we need a different one for a cover shot. Tom has already said that they would need to be printed on white or off white card and we both favour a double A4 size -- ie A4 for the portrait and A4 for an expanded calendar portion. Other than that, not much has been decided. But it's an idea that's growing! 😊

We do put them up on our website (and have to add the latest one or two.)

Will, your work is brilliant....no surprise there.

Another thought....if Will is able, nice quality print/s could be done from this Photoshopping of Wendy's art, and offered to our auction? (And perhaps for Dusty Day as well?)

It isn't *my* work which is brilliant lol - that honour belongs to Wendy, not me. She created these amazing images of Dusty.

If I could help with any of that I would be absolutely thrilled and very honoured! And I think the calendar idea is fantastic! And yes, the idea re prints is fabulous also. I have a good quality printer but it only prints up to A4 size, but there are loads of options for getting prints made bigger or on different media (such as canvas, for example) at a reasonable price. The important part is to have a good quality image to begin with and that, I can certainly do and I'm more than happy to help.

EDIT: If A4 is big enough in size, then happy to print away :)
