It looks very arty, Wendy.

And those coloured pictures are wonderful, Will & Wendy!

Wow, I can't believe I missed this!!! Absolutely exquisite. I love, love, love that photo of Dusty- it's so striking- and you've drawn it so perfectly. Just fabulous. You're so talented, Wendy! 🙌

Love Will's coloured version also. 😊

Thank you Sarah - I love your great screen shots too. The last ones are excellent, not that they aren't all mind you, but they are particularly nice of our Dusty, if you know what I mean.

Another fantastic drawing, Wendy. Is the picture here true to the actual colors? What you do with the hair is really extraordinary in all your pictures. Amazing!

The black and white pictures always come out slightly bluey grey, but the photos I take are nearer to the actual thing, than the enhancements that Will does. Because he's basically trying to make them more visible and accentuating them by giving them contrast. The coloured ones are generally much more accurate colourwise I would say Annie. But I do have difficulty in reproducing them with the camera. The one I'm doing at the moment is for Mary and it is one of Sarah's screenshots. Mary and I decided together it would make a nice picture, but it is faint, and I'm already wondering how I can get it to come out on here. It is basically just two colours blue and pink. It's that picture a page or two back that Mary put on for me to work from.

Ah I can't take the credit for that one, Wendy; that's someone else's lovely screenshot. I bet it'll make a really nice drawing- can't wait to see it! 😊

Oh is it not one of yours Sarah, anyway it is utterly captivating whoever took it. I've got high hopes that it will make a nice drawing.

Just to add my tuppence worth here, I know from the two portraits I have from Wendy that the problem is not in the drawing - the colours are indeed accurate and perfectly fine - but in the reproduction here. Wendy, it may be that at the photographing stage, if you are using flash on your camera, this is washing out the images. If you do use flash, try without (but steady the camera or take the picture in sunlight) and see if that helps at all.

Thanks Will - at first I went all round the house and in the garden to try and find the best place, and finally decided the kitchen floor was the best at right angles to window and glass door, there was more light there than anywhere - I do put the camera on automatic, because frankly I haven't a clue what I'm doing, and I don't do manuals. LOL But I'll take note of your suggestions and try and improve things next time.

Thanks, Wendy for the info re the color of the actual drawings. Thanks also for posting the address of your site. The drawings came out beautifully there.

Thanks Annie, I appreciate that, because I have been trying really hard to get them as good as possible on the Website. It's all good practice as they say.
