I love the sheer exuberance of the first of those two images - and again, very nicely done indeed.

yes Will thats the one i would love to have a go at with a big paintbrush and a very large wall just like Rolf harriss would have done many years ago (anybody remember those great paintings rolf use to do on his show?) well i did use a very large pencil and a sheet of A4 to practice first!----- sketching or drawing is pretty new found hobby for me so i'm still trying to get a consistent style sorted out got so many things i would like to try! i am only happy that people recognise who i have drawn- i shall try and get some other stars of the sixties posted up just to bore everyone to death once more heres my latest- c'mon Wendy keep up!!

Sorry Dave, needed some sleep.

A very nice one yet again. Love the eyes, and a very good likeness of our Dusty.

We await your other stars too, I'm finally about to embark on an Elvis Presley one myself, it's gonna take time though cause I have to put Dusty first.

I've often thought about doing a Dusty Mural myself, but it would mean putting some new wallpaper on that was suitable to paint on and it sounds like a huge job to me, before I even start the mural.

Good drawings Wend and Dave, love the 'Blue Dusty ' Wend. I keep meaning to have a go myself, but I haven't the same amount of patience I had in the 60's.

very nice Wendy i am impressed with your level of detail better than my "throw some pencil at a piece of paper" attitude!
is it just pencil crayon you use? or the soft crayon stick thingies?

Just those cheap pencil crayons that the kids all use Dave for about 99p in Tescos.
