Thanks Wendy! That picture is really stunning. I wish I could draw so well, how long does it take ya to do these drawings?

The coloured ones probably about 40 hours Laura, maybe more sometimes. And the black and white ones not quite so long, say 20 to 30 hours. But I don't spend long hours, just half hour here and a half hour there, and that may amount to about 2 hours a day on average.

This is Mauri's (Misty) choice - one of my favourites too, and we thought it would be a nice picture to commemorate Dusty's birthday.

I call this one coy, as I think Dusty looks a bit coy on this one.
There's a black and white version on my site too as I can't make my mind up which looks the best.

WENDY LLOVE IT

I love this one Wend, I think for me you have got the cheekiness in Dustys eyes, I do love the black and white version I saw on your site earlier, but both work don't you think?

Oh now that's an unusual one, Wend! I had a look at the other version and after some consideration, FINALLY decided that I prefer the one above, although it wasn't an easy choice as both work very well indeed :)

Thank you Mary, Cas and Will.

I think I prefer this version, it's a bit softer isn't it, just by way of a change.

Yes she does look a bit cheeky Cas, doesn't she, but as you say either works ok.
