you too can have a record collection just like Dusty's 😊

http://cgi.ebay.co.uk/Original-Soundtrack-Black-Nativity-UK-vinyl-record-LP_W00QitemZ360130729489QQcmdZViewItemQQimsxZ20090211IMSfp=TL090211131001r11747-- i believe it is an american musical of the nativity starring an all black cast possibly recorded in 1961/62- it sabbath album 'nativity' that i thought it was with a different cover to what i have a seen!!

i am trying to identify another record - the one with the white sleeve that is behind the mucho bitmo album (i take it, that is a latin americ a bit of the old latin american music)) in the album rack it looks like " music to strip to" or "music to 5trio" any body have any ideas. Brian?

i thought this picture was taken Dusty's home but when i looked closer , behind Dusty there is a costume rack and of course the very large against- surely it must be a dressing room in a theater - i wonder where it was?

unless Dusty was saving a few bob and storing all her stage clothes in her flat?

That's the same brown chair Cas, so yes, I'd say definitely same flat. Dave, I'm thinking that she would have to store her clothes at home : own record collection, and you'd expect her to keep that at home. Madeline came over to the UK with the Black Nativity show, possibly in here. I guess it's possible that Dusty saw the show on stage. I'd guess that the album half hidden on the floor is the Exciters as there is a

I love all these photos and it's great to have them all in one place so we can easily find them again. I haven't seen the blue slacks before - looks great in them with that pink shirt. These particular (slacks) photos do make me want to say 'Dusty, could you take that thing off you minutes!?' 😊

My favourite photo of Dusty with that wig is the tom boy one on the roof where the wig is a bit of a mess. I tried to buy one those photos

Thank you so much Carole and Cas for this fabulous thread.

It's funny you should mention the "tomboy" shot on the roof Memphis because I was looking at one earlier and was wondering if it was poss the ones in the flat. She could even be on the roof of Baker St! Her hair is identical, just slightly windblown. That wig didn't always look the slightly differently but here it looks the same.

Hey! That's one of my pictures! Well, one of the ones I've tried to get hold of. I love those pictures of Dusty 'up on the roof!' Thanks Carol I'm almost sure she's wearing her 'Girl Called Dusty' shirt. My favourite Dusty shirt!

Very well done Clive for spotting the Shirelles (has she just come back from the States - I don't think she could've bought it in the UK?). TI been careful about the records that are on show. They all mean something special. And having 'Black Nativity' up front is very intriguing. Kr records are makes these photos almost iconic in my book. Like Will, I love the wider shot of Dusty in her room on the floor with the records

Maybe one day, Carole's idea about a coffee table picture book will actually happen. I don't know if anyone remembers the largish scale Ma book but something like that (biography plus photos) for Dusty would be perfect.

And I get sweaty hands from the pic with Dusty balancing on that rail...

Carole thanks for the Dusty and guitar up on the roof photo. I love it.

The roof photos were published around April 1964 but that doesn't mean they were taken at that time. Does anyone know when the other taken? Here's the little photo (the original image is tiny) I saw on ebay:

Clive thanks so much for tracking those album titles down. They have got my imagination running away with me especially because of the c records eg The Shirelles (Scepter, 1962). I am thinking this must be 1963 (I see from the thread title it is!)and that the records photos cap decided upon her new musical path.

I just want to check (especially with Carole) what I'm thinking with you all. Dusty looks like a 'Springfields' group member to me in these ph her Exciters epiphany in New York, back in London and about to start out as a solo singer? Or has she already made that transition?

These pictures were taken while Dusty was still with the group, if I can find an exact date I'll post it. She was rid of that hair do before goi Nativity, I thought I'd post a YouTube clip from 1962.

Oh thanks so much Carole (and for the clip).

This means this thread could make a crucial chapter in your coffee table book. 😊 Dusty is telling us (and The Springfields' fans) that times : changing too. The other great chapter you've made is 'Dusty in the Studio'.

In my own youth I bought 'Gospel in Colonus' the same kind of thing as 'Black Nativity'. I was listening to the Shirelles, and Dionne Warwick albums), Isley Brothers and of course lots of Motown by then too. Discovering all this great music was so exciting.

But what must it have been like for Dusty at the time it all started to happen? When she just happened to be in the USA and happened to Shirelles, Dionne Warwick, Baby Washington, Chuck Jackson etc? It must have been amazing for her because it changed her career path. S interviews and now we have these photos too. This thread has been another great LTD gift. I can't thank you (Carole, Cas and Clive - The great thread. 😊😊
