Found this interview while surfing the net. There were some comments the interviewer made that I thought everyone would like to read, if you haven't already. Dusty got to watch all her BBC performances. And if I remember correctly, the nurses and caregivers watched too because they really didn't know how famous Dusty was. Or maybe even who she was.

When I was talking about Dusty's caregivers in my previous post, I found the article in which they speak about showing the video from Dusty's BBC performances. It showed her caregivers who she was, and apparently made Dusty very happy.

In her final days, the nurses who came to look after her were young Australians – Dusty was disappointed that they didn't know who she was.

So her old friend Simon Bell brought a video of her Sixties BBC appearances into her sickroom, pushed it in to the VCR, and then simply observed as the nurses watched in amazement.

Dusty sat up in bed watching the nurses – and watching herself on the screen. So fabulous, so perfect, so young. And Bell saw that his friend was beaming with delight.

Thanks Cecelia for posting your interviews. Even though I have read many times, when I read the final one it still made tears come to my eyes.

Cecelia, do you know that this quote comes from Karen Bartlett's book?

Hi Donella-Though I have read the Karen Bartlett book, I didn't realize that is where this quote was. I take in so much Dusty information in books, articles, interviews, etc., I don't always remember where it all comes from. It could also be because I am 60 and my mind isn't as sharp as it used to be! And Lynn, yes it brings tears to my eyes too.....
