Jorja Fox and many of her friends are the founders, and through the company they write, produce and star in many of their own works. According to what she said a TV Guide interview, HoneyPot was formed in either 1998 or 1999; she met fellow HoneyPot members Katherine Kendall and Suzanne Mara during the filming of Food for the Heart in 1998.

Most of their plays are performed in small community theaters (or, as they've said, "in people's backyards"); Dear Bernard is their first play for a major theater audience.

I was alerted to this production a few weeks ago Nancy but then after I saw this clip on YouTube, I decided to ignore it! Bad wig, bad dress and unbelievably bad hand movements! I'm a harsh critic....or am I?

Not even as good as Tamsin Caroll let alone Dusty. Weird outfit! Dusty would never have worn anything like that. At least the Oz show's costumes were meticulously researched. This person needs to study Dusty more!
