Mine arrived today. Have you received yours yet? What do you think?

Although I never subscribed, I do think it's terribly sad; an era has come to an end. But on a positive note, the Bulletin will now become the stuff of legend.

I got mine today, also. I forgot that there was one more left.

I find it hard to believe that we received ours before our friends across the pond. Well I don't want to say too much as others may still be waiting but I will say the cover is graced with a familiar more mature Dusty..the centerfold w/ a favorite of Dusty in Central PK but its the back cover that is AMAZING. very nice choice . Paul chose not to publish any editorial letters as he has had so many but did print one..a really touching, sentimental letter from Pat Rhodes.

thank you Paul and any others who have contributed to the Bulletin over the years..though I have only been a subscriber for the last 4 yrs it is something that has always brought joy and anticipation every time I unwrapped it from the brown paper that it arrived in.

I look forward to any new projects that you put forth ESPECIALLY the Dusty coffee table book that you have mentioned in this last issue

Best Wishes

Got back from holiday to find my Bulletin waiting. I've only looked at the pictures so far and agree, front and back are absolutely stunning. It's coming to bed with me tonight

Far be it for me to say - but I will 😊 - ANOTHER holiday?!?! 😊

The pictures in the final bulletin are wonderful - well done Paul.

Carole, the holiday Queen. 😊

I, too love the pictures. They're simply beautiful. I only subscribed very recently, and my subscription would have run out with this current issue, had it not been the last. Wish I'd thought to do it earlier, but a heartfelt thanks goes to Paul for all his work over the life of the Bulletin and hopefully, beyond! Can't wait to see what other Dusty projects he's going to come up with besides the coffee table book.

If you get withdrawal symptoms Taylor, Paul still has back issues that you can catch up on 😊 I'm thrilled at the idea of a coffee table book and can't wait (yes, I know it won't be quick!) to get my hands on it. And there's no one in a better place than Paul to put this together.

A coffee table book really would be a treat.. I'll keep my fingers crossed this comes to fruition..

Some very good pictures in this edition and also some good articles.

A fitting final edition. Also a touching letter from Pat.

Thank you Paul for all you have done over the years with the Bulletin and for all the other projects you have been involved with.

Here, here Trek. Just thought to mention as Paul did in his editorial, how similar the front page picture of Dusty from her final TV appearance is to the one on the cover of issue no.1, which Paul re-prints in the editorial. There must be around 25 years between them but only the hair looks different. Uncanny.

Just to say Liz, as the Bulletin has now finished and so membership is no longer needed to purchase it from Paul, you could just write or email and request a copy, they're £5.00 each. Same goes for any back copies that he still has available. Strange that some copies are being bid for on Ebay and are going for silly prices when all they have to do is contact the editor and pay a fiver!

I subscribed last month, so I received the last two from '08 and the final issue last week. Great stuff! I've been reading them on the Staten Island Ferry to and from Manhattan every work day. I'll probably order some back issues.

Paula - You're so right! The pictures are so great! The front cover is somewhat touching, as it's probably one of the final photos of Dusty. The back cover is just plain beautiful. But that centerfold of Dusty in Central Park - It's one of the best ever! Really great and fitting that Paul saved this one for the final issue. It may very well end up on my wall. It's too good not to be displayed prominently!

I contacted Paul as my Bulletin had not arrived, and I just had this feeling that my membership was due...even for just the very last issue, and I was right. Paul said that others could be in the same situation as he did not put reminder slips in issue 66. He assures me its now in the post 😊
