I just found a picture on ebay of Dusty with Einstein. Being the obsessive person I am, I noticed that Einstein had a wardrobe?...Because he is wearing two different dresses in two different pictures.

1. I've been searching through the boards and have gotten bits and pieces of the story, but I'm sure someone can tell me more efficiently: Where did Dusty get Einstein? And what's the significance?

2. TWO different outfits. How adorable is that!?!?! I kinda love it.

http://www.ebay.com/itm/DUSTY-SPRINGFIELD-LEAVES-U-S-A-1970-Keystone-Press-photograph-/300652960268?pt=UK_Collectables_Photos_MJ&hash=item4600501a0c#ht_1170wt_1270

I don't know how to post saved image files from my computer onto the boards, so there's the link. The other pictures are the ones where she's (seemingly) backstage wearing a short curly wig and holding him while sitting in a chair. But I don't have the URL for it.

That's all!

1. Dusty saw Einstein hanging in a shop window and decided to rescue him. She never left home without him and she had very specific instructions for how he should be packed in her luggage so he would have enough room to breathe.

2. Einstein's wardrobe came courtesy of Dusty - she would make dresses for him/her from scraps of material to pass the time when she was on the road.

Hi Carolyn, I wrote a piece on Einstein called A Very Fine Bear for the Dusty Bulletin a few years back, you can find it on our Website http://dustyspringfield.org.uk/LTD/LTD/ ... stein.html along with a couple of pictures.

I have some questions. Actually- I'm going to e-mail you instead.

Thanks, everyone, for the information!!! I can relate to that a lot. I currently, at age 26, have a stuffed dog that I bought a year ago because living alone is...well...lonely. His name is pre-Winston. Because I want to get some sort of Shih Tzu mix (whatever is rescuable at the time in which I'm looking) and name him Winston. He'll be older. Winston is not a puppy name.

Thanks again!

So Einstein was a boy dressed up as a girl?.. 🤔😏😄

I've always thought that the best Dusty book would be the one written by Einstein. 🤔

🌹🤔 A dress, a kilt, a coat. Wear what he will. I relate to Einstein as Dusty's closest confidant. Perhaps her surrogate child. His story is the only one I would ever believe. 🤔🌹

Thanks so much!!!! I had the first one already, but I've definitely never seen the 2nd one, so that's great!!!

But let's get serious: What is he wearing in this picture? The little belt thing looks a little bit like what a monk would wear. What do you guys think? I just love it. ❤️❤️❤️

And it sports a little bell. More hippy than monk me thinks. 😊

I think the Peter Pan collar precludes any "monk" influence. Although the rest of it does look sort of like a cassock, but I put that down to Einstein's lack of curves.

Funnily enough I guessed it was probably an old necklace, but I could never have actually found a pic of her wearing it!!

🌹👁️🌹 Absolutely know that feeling Carolyn.

In my case I should be called "Born So Close".

I was just a little too young to appreciate Dusty's work "62/"67"

Dusty was ending a successful career in the UK, and beginning a new adventure in America just as I was coming of age. "The Summer of Love", 1967 heralded a new era in music, and I was living in the Los Angeles area when Dusty lived there.

😊 Better late than never eh ? 🙌

This is the one I've got of Einstein, doesn't look anything like the other one then does it. Have I got it wrong.

I'm absolutely sure I would have got this from LTD somewhere in the distant past.

This is Einstien's cousin Mangy Springfield. He was sent to the colonies after someone pulled out all his fur.

That's definitely the real Einstein, without a shadow of a doubt! Look at the spot on his head and at the other photo's. Not sure where it's from though, is it a screen grab? That's Pat holding him, has he appeared in any documentaries, I can't remember. He definitely is a little mangy these days, look at the close up from my photo.
