Greetings, Dustians!

Question: On the "South Bank Show" and at least one other documentary, there are snippets of video footage from an interview with Dusty from, I'm guessing, around the early '70's. I've tried unsuccessfully to find the full, uncut version of that interview online, nor do I know any background information about it. I've attached a screenshot from the snippets in question for reference. Does anybody have background info on this, and/or know where I might find footage of the full interview? Thanks so much for your help, and best wishes! 😊

The only place I can think of where the interview was shown in full, or at least a longer version, I'm almost sure was on the video release "Reputation - The Video". The interview was segmented between the video clips. I still have the video but the tape in it is twisted and I can't play it 😞 I feel that I may have seen it somewhere else as well (or perhaps I'm thinking of the clips you mention), maybe someone else can remember? It was made for the overseas market and I've always thought it to be a rather sad, reflective interview. Dusty gave a few in print at that time that had the same feel.

This was an interview on the Dutch TV show Dusty did where she mimed to various tracks from From Dusty With Love album, ICMEACTT, etc.

Also bits of it are shown fleetingly in The British Invasion (Once Upon A Time) DVD, which confirms your Early 70's date Nancy. 👍

"Just Dusty", the Dutch show from 1970. Thanks Graham, that's what I was trying to remember.

I see more of a young Dusty in this video/photo than most others from this time or even earlier times.

I appreciate everyone's help/feedback--thanks! According to the DWD account, I think it was in '71 that she and Norma Tanega officially split up, so perhaps a part of her reflexive/somber demeanor was the result of that...?

Yes, there was something very amiss with Dusty at that time.. 🤔

There was none of her usual 'Sparkle'.. 😬
