I thought this might be a good place to post about our recent "discoveries" or purchases on eBay. This is one I saw earlier tonight. Does it look or sound familiar to anyone?

It came out not long after Dusty died, I'd check my copy for the date if I could only lay my hands on it! It's around somewhere. To be honest, it's not bad, some of it anyway, but I only ever played it through once. I guess I like the songs better by the lady herself 😊

When it came out in June '00 I listened to it in a shop and was happy to leave it there. BTW should you wish you can buy it from Amazon for £1.70.

I bought this and couldn't stand listening to it so I sold it. It might be interesting to listen to nowadays though - for a purchase price of £1.70 plus post.

Ever since we met...

Interesting to note. Thanks, all! I don't think I'll be buying it. I don't even know most of the singers on it. Though it would be very interesting to hear Carole Pope's version of 'Soft Core'. I didn't even know she'd done one!

I pulled this out to listen to the Carole Pope version of "Soft Core." Not great... what made this song so great to me was Dusty's subtle, lilting voice singing these hard, severe lyrics. With Ms. Pope its a severe voice singing severe lyrics. Not garbage, but no great shakes, either.

The CD also has a few artists you may have heard of: the Indigo Girls doing "Broken Blossoms," Jill Sobule doing "Just a little Lovin" (a bit mousy voice but a nice version) and Vicki Randle (the African American bongo player from the Tonight Show band) doing a reggae version of "Wishin and Hopin" (not horrible but the not the ideal arrangement for this song). Gail Ann Dorsey surprised me with a pretty decent version of "Losing You" (a song that I couldn't imagine anyone being able to cover). Jennifer

Kimball does an interesting wistful, almost-emo Chris Isaak-type version of "Chained to a Memory."

If anyone's interested, check half.com for $12, or amazon for $7.92.

Just hearing about Carole Pope's version of "Soft Core" is enough for anyone, trust me.

Any good ebay purchases lately? Anyone buying any of those photos? I bid a few times but quickly saw I was waaaaay out of my league in the $$ dept.

I bid on a signed copy of A Very Fine Love, but forgot about it until the auction was over. Good thing I didn't notice! it sold for nearly $450!

And Bosseh, I think you're right. I'll be fine just hearing ABOUT Carole Pope's version. She may have written the song, but Miss Dusty far outclasses her as a singer.

Dusty ourclasses most female singers and Carole Pope...well go easy on her because it is not even fair to compare her. The song is rather interesting and evocative of Kurt Weill. Would have been wonderful to have Dusty do some of his songs. He was unique and Dusty's smokey sound and way of interpreting would have been..hey "Dusty in Berlin".
