Like him or loate him, Barry Manilow appeared on Paul O'Grady's show on Friday to promote his new album of 60's song covers. When asked who his favourite sixties performers were, he answered with just one name....Dusty Springfield. He doesn't cover Dusty on his album, not unless you count 'This Guys In Love With You', maybe he knows he couldn't hope to compare. I didn't actually see the show, so don't know if he said anything else about her.

Oh damn!....yet another show I've missed!, I quite like some of Barry's songs, 'Could it be magic' comes to mind (Donna Summer did a disco version of that song too!), plus I've read on sleeve notes that Barry loves Dusty rendition of 'I am your child' (his song).

Barry's obviously a fan of our Dusty, so that make's him OK in my book!

He most certainly does Mads!....some of his songs are a bit cheesy and schmaltzy, but there are some good 'uns around!

i kinda like the song "Mandy", much to FGM's disapproval

but good on Manilow for being a Dusty fan! 😊
